MacARTHUR FLIES TO AUSTRALIA

TAKES SUPREME ALLIED COMMAND

M'ARTHUR FLIES TO AUSTRALIA AS ALLIED FAR PACIFIC CHIEF

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP)—Arrival of Gen. Douglas MacArthur in Australia to assume the supreme command of United Nations forces in that region was announced today by the War Department. The assignment was requested by the Australian government, the Department said, and President Roosevelt directed MacArthur on Feb. 22 to transfer his headquarters from the Philippines he has been so brilliantly defending to Australia as soon as the necessary arrangements could be made.

MacArthur requested a delay until he could perfect arrangements within his Philippine command, and this delay was approved by the President.

•U. S. OFFICIAL

MacArthur was accompanied on the plane trip to Australia by Mrs. MacArthur and their son; by his chief of staff, Maj.-Gen. Richard K. Sutherland; Brig.-Gen. Harold H. George of the air forces, and several other staff officers.

His command in the Southwest Pacific region will include the Philippine Islands, the War Department said.

Among the men now under MacArthur in Australia are the "considerable numbers" making up the expeditionary force of American ground troops and Air Corps units whose arrival was announced yesterday by Secretary of War Stimson.

Wife and Son Go Along With MacArthur

WASHINGTON, March 17 (INS)—Sharing the perils of a soldier's life, Mrs. Douglas MacArthur and her four-year-old son arrived in Australia by plane today with the distinguished head of their family.

While details of the flight from Bataan were not disclosed, the War Department's announcement that Gen. MacAruthur and his family have arrived in Australia indicated that Mrs. MacArthur and their young son have been under fire since the start of the war.

The former Jean Faircloth of Murfreesboro, Tenn., married the distinguished MacArthur in 1937. She is his second wife. Their one son, Arthur, presumably has been with them either on Bataan or the island fortress of Corregidor since the Japanese struck.

Recent events in the life of young Arthur MacArthur recalled that his father, the general, also was under fire at the age of 4 when hostile Indians attacked an Army barracks in New Mexico.

MacArthur's first wife was the socialite Mrs. Louise Cromwell Brooks, step-daughter of multimillionaire Edward T. Statesbury. Married in 1922, they parted as "friends" and were divorced seven years later. She is now the wife of the actor, Lionel Atwill.

MacArthur met his second wife while he was en route to the Philippines for the final tour of duty that carried him into the present conflict. Married in 1937, the couple was reported extremely happy in Manila in the years that preceded the Japanese attack.

Following the outbreak of hostilities there was virtually no news about MacArthur's family except a terse War Department announcement that they had been evacuated from Manila and were "safe."

To Mrs. MacArthur and the child, safety meant sharing the fate of the American-Filipino troops who were under almost constant aerial bombardment in the early days of the war.

Now they have joined American forces who arrived in Australia recently to co-operate with the United Nations in checking the Japanese.

FLIGHT MAP—Aerial route believed taken by Gen. Douglas MacArthur from the Philippines to Australia is shown on this map (dotted line) . . . a 1979-mile flight.

N. E. Ship Sunk; 4 Dead, 16 Missing, 14 Rescued

Blasted by enemy torpedoes within sight of Atlantic City, N. J., a "medium-sized New England merchant vessel" sank with a loss of four known dead, 16 missing and only 14 rescued, Capt. Grover D. Clark, 57, of Machias, Me., reported today when he arrived in Boston with the survivors of his crew.

The Navy Department refused to identify the vessel by name.

The known dead include two Greater Boston men, Seaman Patrick F. Sparrow, 43, of Playstead rd., West Medford, and Ernest A. French, oiler, of Hanover st., North End.

Fourteen of the missing men are from this vicinity and two from other parts of New England.

THREE TORPEDOES

The vessel was ripped by three torpedoes, Capt. Clark said, about 2 o'clock Saturday morning while proceeding without lights five miles off Atlantic City.

"It was only a small sub and could not have made the trip to these shores and back to Germany," Clark said.

The first torpedo struck the vessel amidships and knocked the radio out of commission. Another projectile crashed into the ship shortly after 26 men launched a lifeboat.

The second blast tossed the tiny lifeboat into the air and dumped its occupants into the water. Only six of the men in the craft were rescued.

The rescued men took to two life rafts, on which they tossed for more than five hours before two other ships hove to and picked them up.

IN PERFECT ENGLISH

Immediately after the rafts cleared the stricken ship the submarine surfaced and a man, apparently the captain, spoke to the survivors in perfect English:

"Hey you there! What's the name of your ship?"

When none of the crew answered him, he went down the conning tower and the submarine moved away to send the third torpedo into the now-sinking ship.

The body of French was hauled

REDS' SMASH WIDENS SPLIT IN NAZI LINE

Moscow

March 17 (AP)

•OFFICIAL NEWS

Continuing Russian successes against German defenders and counter-attacks in three sectors were reported by front line dispatches today.

From the southwest, Marshal Timoshenko's forces, seeking the liberation of Kharkov, Russia's "Pittsburgh," were said to have enlarged the breach in the German line, overthrowing fierce resistance.

Heavy German losses were claimed in the Kalinin sector during repeated counter-attacks in which Soviet troops drove the attackers back with bayonet charges across blood-stained snowdrifts.

The German 16th Army trapped by the Russians at Staraya Russa, below Leningrad, has lost one of its most important points of resistance in heavy fighting, the Moscow radio reported today. Front line dispatches identified the point only as "N."

The loss of this point was said to be particularly grave for the Germans, as it is situated on the summit of a commanding height.

Military observers believe this may have been the ancient walled city of Novgorod, one of the main anchors of German resistance.

The Red army has been steadily tightening its ring of steel around the Germans in Staraya Russa.

A dispatch from the Donets basin said violent battles were developing in that entire area, with success swinging first to the Germans, then to the Russians.

•OFFICIAL NEWS

By ROBERT E. BRUNNELLE

Closing by German authorities of all Norwegian ports from North Cape to Aalesund, a responsible source said today, makes "it appear ominously as though the Nazis are getting ready either for an assault on American-British supply lines to Russia or a move against Iceland."

The source cited these other German naval and military moves as indicating the likelihood of a new major campaign in the north:

Today's announcement by the Nazi high command of intensified fighting in Lapland, extreme northern area which at the Russian frontier is only 50 miles from the Soviet Arctic supply base of Murmansk.

TIRPITZ ON THE LOOSE

Authoritative information that the Germans have sent strong reinforcements to their Norwegian garrisons.

Massing of Nazi warships at Trondheim, including the Tirpitz, newest, biggest and most dangerous of Germany's battleships.

This source said the Germans now are believed to have "between 150,000 and 200,000 soldiers in Norway, in comparison with the 100,000 reported there last autumn.

He said he had no information about the present whereabouts of the Tirpitz,

Britain already had been warned that the Tirpitz now may be loose on the high seas.

The news had grave implications for the British, since a warship as mighty as the Tirpitz is so grave a menace to sea convoys that strong British naval forces, including battleships, must be diverted from other work to meet her challenge.

The importance attached to security of the northern sea lanes was indicated today in an admiralty communique which disclosed that a British auxiliary mine sweeper had shot down a German JU-88 in an attack on a Russian merchantman.

3 Girls, Woman Burn To Death in 3 Fires

Three young girls and a woman were burned to death and two other persons critically injured today in fires in dwellings at Hough's Neck, Hopkinton and North Wilbraham. Two youngsters lost their lives and others were rescued when flames destroyed their home on Rockland st., Hough's Neck.

The dead girls were Eleanor Baker, 9, and her sister, June, 7, both trapped in an upstairs bedroom.

Mrs. Sarah Baker, 35, their mother, told a dramatic story of being awakened by the crackle of flames and calling to her husband, Ernest, 65.

"When I woke up the fire was so bright I was dazed and could not see,' she told firemen. "My husband helped me 'ownstairs and pushed me outside. Then he dashed back upstairs. One by one the children were helped out —all except my poor little daughters."

HELD FROM GOING BACK

Firemen said the distraught woman had to be held from returning to the flaming house and at one time even tried to climb a nearby tree that reaches over an upstairs porch.

The father led out two sons, Ernest, Jr., 18, and Harold, 16, after which he passed another son, Kenneth, 13, unconscious, through a window. He also carried out the baby of the family, Philip, 5, and

150,000 THRONG ROUTE OF SO. BOSTON PARADE

Significant of a changing world, 10,000 marchers swung today through South Boston streets in the dual celebration of St. Patrick's Day and the 166th anniversary of Boston's evacuation by the British, with whom we are now allied in a war against oppression.

In typically sloppy March 17th weather, a throng of more than 150,000 lined the parade route, wearing shamrocks and waving the Stars and Stripes.

Loudest of the cheering came all along the line as 1600 members of the crack 181st Infantry from Camp Edwards—a flashback to the youth of that first World War—swung along over the wet pavements.

ENDS WITH BANQUET

Meanwhile open house prevailed throughout the district, with social gatherings and a banquet to wind up the festivities tonight.

The holiday program was ushered in with memorial exercises on old Dorchester Heights, where George Washington had emplaced guns to threaten the Redcoats of George III and cause their hasty withdrawal from the city on March 17, 1776.

Death Mystery In Fairhaven

FAIRHAVEN, March 17 — Sprawled against the curb at Walnut and Washington sts., the body of a woman was found early today by a gas company service man.

Associate Medical Examiner J. U. Paquin said she appeared to be no more than 35 years old. He withheld his verdict pending an autopsy.

Police and the examiner could find no marks of identification either on the clothing or the handbag, which lay on the pavement nearby.

The handbag contained a handkerchief, keys, toilet articles and a small sum of money.

There were no marks of violence, Dr. Paquin said, but on one knee was a small bruise.

Oklahoma Demands Congressmen Stop Strikes or Resign

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., March 17—Irate over Congressional procrastination, Oklahoma citizens are writing and telegraphing demands that the entire Oklahoma delegation resign and come home, or legislate to outlaw defense industry strikes and to abolish the 40-hour work-week law.

More than 100,000 telegrams, letters and postcards have been sent to the Oklahoma Senators and Congressmen by a constituency described today as "boiling, fighting mad."

The demand is for congressional action to get 100 per cent production from every munitions plant in the country.

DRAFTEES WILL LEARN NUMBERS HERE TONIGHT

The first draft lottery of World War II and the third since Selective Service became law will be held tonight in Washington when order numbers will be drawn for 9,000,000 men between the ages of 20 and 44.

A total of 273,164 Massachusetts men have a stake in tonight's drawings, which will begin at 6 and continue through the night until 7000 capsules have been drawn from the famous "goldfish bowl."

Lieut.-Col. Ralph M. Smith, assistant state selective service director, said 10 women clerks will be on duty at state headquarters supplying names for holders of numbers drawn in Washington.

TO PUBLISH LISTS

The Daily Record and Evening American will publish lists of order numbers as soon as they become available.

Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson will draw the first capsule and then high military and government officials will take up the all-night task.

Brig.-Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national selective service director, said it will be at least two months before questionnaires will be sent the men affected by the lottery. Induction will follow within a month after, he added.

Both Mayor Tobin and Acting Mayor Thomas E. Linehan will be interested, since they are within the age brackets affected.

LINEHAN TO ENLIST

Tobin's wife and three children are expected to assure him of automatic exemption under present rules. Linehan, however, may face an early call to duty since he is unmarried.

The acting mayor has already announced his intention to enlist in the Navy soon.

The highest serial number in Massachusetts was announced as 2711. Smith estimated that only one of every three numbers drawn will affect Bay State men, since a total of 7000 capsules will be in the bowl.

Few Allied Craft Battled Fleet

LONDON, March 17 (AP)—Japan's forces in the naval battle of Java were composed of 14 cruisers, five aircraft carriers, 55 destroyers and 25 submarines, a speaker in the House of Lords declared today.

These were opposed by five United Nations cruisers, all of which have been officially reported lost, and smaller ships.

BUY BONDS FOR BOMBERS

GRANGE ADDS $200,000 TO FUND FOR BOMBERS

BUY BONDS FOR MASSACHUSETTS BOMBERS! The tragic news of the devastating loss of 12 United Nations naval craft brings clearly into focus the imperative need for every one of us to BUY BONDS so the government may provide the necessary weapons of war and prevent any repetition of this naval disaster.

BUY BONDS and BUY THEM NOW! Today is the best time to do your DUTY.

Ernest H. Gilbert

The Massachusetts State Grange, with a membership of approximately 40,000, today stepped into the lineup of patriotic organizations pledging enthusiastic support of the BUY BONDS FOR MASSACHUSETTS BOMBERS campaign.

PLEDGES $200,000

This powerful organization, comprised of sturdy, settled, property-owning citizens of our Commonwealth, promised to buy $200,000 worth of BONDS this year.

This substantial pledge by this great association boosts the BUY A BOMBER drive total up to $24,518,611 and puts the campaign well on its way toward the 25,000,000 mark.

Ernest H. Gilbert of North Easton, state secretary, wrote the BUY A MASSACHUSETTS BOMBER editor (5 Winthrop sq., Boston):

"We are more than pleased to join in this patriotic drive being conducted by the Boston Record-American and Sunday Advertiser. The papers are to be congratulated on their whole-hearted support to such a worthwhile program as BUYING BONDS and STAMPS that our glorious country may properly fight on to

FINAL VICTORY.

"The State Grange of Massachusetts gladly pledges to purchase approximately $200,000 in BONDS this year. Our hope is that the goal will be passed by a substantial margin."

FIRST OBJECTIVE

Joining with Sec. Gilbert in these sentiments were Harvey G. Turner of Andover, state master; and Mrs. Lillian F. Atkinson of Westfield, state lecturer.

The patriotic gesture of the State Grange is entirely in keeping with the first objective listed in the "Declaration of Purposes" adopted in 1874. The opening item in the preamble reads:

"We mutually resolve to labor for the good of our Order, our country and mankind."

For the good of their country and mankind, 40,000 members of the Massachusetts Grange have resolved to BUY BONDS FOR MASSACHUSETTS BOMBERS.

Such an inspiring example should serve as a guide to ALL true Americans. We must all labor and sacrifice for the good and safety of our country and mankind.

Not all of us can take up arms. Not all of us can work unceasingly in war production plants. Not all of us can take part in civilian defense work.

BUY THEM TODAY

ALL of us CAN and MUST BUY BONDS and STAMPS to make certain that never again will the world be torn by mad, avaricious gangsters who attain control of governments by nefarious means.

BUY BONDS FOR MASSACHUSETTS BOMBERS. Buy them TODAY. Take your change in STAMPS, and BUY BONDS whenever possible.

We've lost several naval ships in this war. We've lost a number of BOMBERS and fighting planes.

They MUST be replaced. Your BOND and STAMPS purchases will make it possible to build bigger and better fighting machines and assure FINAL and COMPLETE VICTORY.

Kernan Urges Drive Via Italy

NEW YORK, March 17 (INS)—A bold offensive against Hitler through Italy was urged on the United Nations today by Lieut.-Col. W. F. Kernan of the United States Army. The officer, author of a best selling book, "Defense Will Not Win the War," said in an interview:

"Our enemy's center of power is in Europe. Japan is an accessory. We need not be worried by Japan's conquests in the Pacific.

"Once we are able to strike at the head of the Japanese octopus, its tentacle will fall off by themselves and we can pick them up easily. But before getting at Japan's head we must destroy the Germans, and we can only do it this year."

Keeps His 45th St. Patrick's Day Pledge at Grave

READING, Pa., March 17 (AP)—Once there was an Irishman . . . Said Tom Hannahoe to Alvah Schaeffer:

"If I die first, you play the tunes over my grave. But if you die first I'll keep the grass forever green over your grave and put a shamrock on it every year."

So this midnight, faithful Alvah Schaeffer will keep his 45th St. Patrick's Day tryst with the spirit of his old friend.

"I guess I'll make another trip, after all," said the 76-year-old former church musician, agreeably surprised. "I thought for awhile there wouldn't be any more. There were times during the last winter I felt pretty low."

His fingers stiffened by rheumatism, Schaeffer no longer is able to play Hannahoe's favorite tunes—"Nearer, My God, to Thee" and "Lass o' Galway"—so a friend or two with trumpets stand beside him at the grave and shatter the midnight quiet.

Hannahoe, proprietor of a saloon and unofficial mayor of Reading's Irishtown, and Schaeffer made their strange pact on St. Patrick's Day in 1896 in the former's saloon.

RECORD-AMERICAN BOYS SERVE WITH M'ARTHUR

With the War Department's stirring announcement that Gen. Douglas MacArthur has arrived in Australia to assume command, the Office of Censorship today authorized newspapers to print letters received from American boys.

Until this authorization a ban prevailed even on the short cables received by relatives merely telling of their boys' safe arrival on the southern Pacific continent from which they are expected to launch an offensive against Japan.

Three of the Boston Daily Record-Evening American and Sunday Advertiser staff are known to be in the big AEF, eager and waiting for the opportunity to drive to victory behind the great MacArthur. Other members of the staff are in the same outfit but lack of official word prevents publication of their names.

LETTER TO ART CHIEF

One of these boys, Timothy Foley, former Record-American-Advertiser artist, has written to his old boss, Robert Brawley, art department chief. The letter was penned en route to Australia and read:

"We don't know just where we're going . . . and even if we did, we couldn't divulge the news."

With Tim are Frank Quinn, another artist, and William F. Maguire, Jr., of the stereotyping department and son of the Record-American-Advertiser cashier.

SAYS QUINN IN LOVE

Foley's refusal to give out information should serve as a model to those civilians who always tell all they know, whether it may cost the lives of brave soldiers or not.

"You have our new address on the back of this envelope and Frand (Quinn) and I would appreciate all the news you might be able to send to us.

'You may be sure that I'll drop you a line the first time opportunity presents, letting you know where we are . . . if the authorities permit it!"

Foley ribs his pal Frank about his love affairs and says:

"I think he's in love and likes to sit and dream of his girl.

"Me . . . what the heck . . . I've been turned down so often that I've given up!

YOUNG BILL ON SHIP

"I'm glad that I got you in when I called . . . it would have been terrible to have not even said 'hello'. I want you to let the whole crew and the rest of our friends in there know we will miss them . . . including the paymaster, not that we are mercenary.

"Bill's boy (Maguire) is on the ship with us. In fact, most of the fellows that first went from the office are on this ship.

"The Record-American and Sunday Advertiser will be well represented in action this force may engage in . . . escpecially retreats . . . we'll lead all retreats!"

With that jocular remark, Foley ends his letter anr signs off with the hopeful . . . "Cee you in the future."

Boston Evening American Photo

IN AUSTRALIA—Ready to serve under Gen. Douglas MacArthur are these three employes on leave from the Boston Evening American . . . (l. to r.) Frank Quinn and Timmy Foley of the art department and Bill Maguire of the stereotyping department . . . reported as arriving safely in Australia.

Chinese Kill 300 Siamese

NEW DELHI, India, March 17 (AP)—Chinese patrols—part of the force aiding British Imperial troops in the battle for Burma—killed one-third of a detachment of 300 Thai (Siamese) troops and forced the other to retreat, a British Burma headquarters communique announced today.

The action was located near the Burma-Thailand (Siam) frontier, between Mong Tung in the Shan states of Burma and Chiengrai in between Thailand (Siam), where Japanese concentrations have been bombed several times by the RAF.

On the main Burma front, the communique said, enemy concentrations were reported on the roads south of Prome, one of the anchors of the British-Chinese line, but "enemy patrols have not yet made contact with our forward troops."

Here's what YOU can doto help America when you travel

Plan Mid-Week Trips to Ease Week-End Congestion!

YOU can travel today as you have in the past — but you'll be helping yourself as well as your country if you cooperate in several important ways. Wartime conditions tend to crowd transportation facilities on week-ends, the only time many soldiers, sailors, war workers can travel. Taking mid-week trips will relieve congestion — such trips for instance, as shopping tours, social visits, business trips, recreational travel, even visits to camps. If you'll arrange to get tickets, schedules, trip information in advance, you'll avoid delay and confusion.

If you're taking a vacation this year, go before mid-summer. Going by bus instead of by car, you'll be saving war materials—buses carry a passenger several times as far per pound of rubber, per gallon of fuel.

Australia to End Daylight Time; Called Detriment

MELBOURNE, March 17 (AP)—Premier John Curtin of Australia announced today daylight saving time would end the last Sunday in March with the coming of autumn to Australia. Studies by experts showed the long period of daylight after working hours increased fatigue to the detriment of industrial production, he said.

SEC. PERKINS OPPOSES BAN ON 40-HOUR WEEK

By GRIFFING BANCROFT

WASHINGTON, March 17—Secretary of Labor Perkins, in a report to the Senate Labor Committee, today opposed a bill to suspend the 40-hour work week during the war with the declaration it "might easily increase the cost of the war program without providing for compensating stabilization of the wage structure."

The 40-hour week law, she said, does not prohibit men from working longer hours providing time and one-half is paid for overtime.

A study of war industries, she said, shows the law has not prevented factories from working the necessary hours to provide production sought in the war program.

She revealed the great Lockheed aircraft plant in California has just reduced its work week from 48 to 40 hours because of the limited supply of materials available to it.

The cabinet member's adverse report to a bill to lay aside work limitations by Sen. Read (R.) of Kansas was made to the Senate labor committee.

ROW SEEN IN HOUSE

"Of course the secretary's report was adverse," Committee Chairman Thomas (D.) of Utah said. "There is a great deal of misunderstanding about the 40-hour week. People in war industries are now working more than 40 hours a week and there is nothing in the law to prevent it. The law provides only that in certain cases these people shall get paid more for excess work."

The House, meanwhile, prepared for a row over a sweeping bill by Rep. Smith (D.) of Virginia, to suspend the 40-hour week, abolish overtime pay during the war, outlaw closed shops, and limit profits to six percent.

Bitterness engendered over this proposal 24 hours after its introduction indicated the fight will plunge the House into disunity again and threaten to delay plans for a two-week Easter recess.

Rep. Vinson (D.) of Georgia federal chairman of the House naval affairs committee and co-author of teh drastic measure, announced hearings would start Thursday and predicted "it will be brought up on the floor soon."

MRS. NORTON RAPS BILL

Frankly drawn to circuit the labor committee, which is cool to sah proposals, the House measure applies only to labor contractors. Thus it went to the naval committee, where approval is anticipated and it can be broadened on the floor to include all war industries.

Rep. Mary Norton (D.) of New Jersey, chairman of the labor committee, meanwhile, was lining up opposition in hope of defeating the bill on the floor.

"All these people are trying to do is to use the war to scuttle the wage-hour law and deprive labor of its rights," she declared.

Fate of the measure, in the opinion of many, rests with the Republican minority in the House.

Wait Until Sergt. Quirk Hears of This One

FT. GEORGE G. MEADE, Ga., March 17 (AP)—Sergt. William Rulenz received a Christmas basket from Miss Alma Blessell of Darby, Pa., who wanted to cheer some soldier, and got Rulenz's name from a friend.

Sergt. Rulenz wrote a thank-you note, and while visiting in Philadelphia a month ago dropped by to thank her in person.

They plan a June wedding.

60 P. C. BOOST IN U. S. TAXES PAID IN STATE

Internal Revenue Collector Thomas B. Hassett estimated today that income tax receipts in Massachusetts this year will surpass by more than 60 per cent the record $42,000,000 payment last year, after close to 1,000,000 returns were filed in Boston up to deadline time.

A last minute rush swamped Hassett's offices in the Federal Building with 100,000 pieces of mail. The collector said a large majority of persons paid in full as a good will gesture to Uncle Sam.

Sloop Yarra's Brave Death Battle Told

By LOUIS LECK

SYDNEY, March 17 (INS)—A thrilling story of how the Australian sloop Yarra went down fighting against insuperable odds, but with guns blazing in the gallant tradition of the sea, was revealed in Sydney today.

Loss of the Yarra, a sloop of 1060 tons, and the Australian cruiser Perth was announced on March 14 by Prime Minister John Curtin.

Today it was revealed the little Yarra was sent to the bottom only after a blazing fight in which it battled to protect a convoy against attacks from three Japanese eight-inch gun cruisers and two destroyers.

The Yarra left Tanjon, near Batavia, Feb. 27 en route to Tjilitjap on the south coast of Java. It was assisting an Indian sloop and an Australian mine sweeper to convoy six merchant vessels.

ATTACKED BY 5 SHIPS

But the rapidity of the Jap advance through Java caused a decision not to enter Tjilitjap.

The convoy then separated, with the Yarra and the mine sweeper escorting two merchantmen toward Australia.

On the night of March 3 a Japanese submarine attacked unsuccessfully and the next day at 6:40 a. m. five Japanese warships attacked.

Each of the two attacking cruisers sent up an aircraft to participate in the battle.

Maximum speed of the convoy was 14 knots—a mere idling speed for a warship. The commander of the Yarra ordered the convoy to disperse and then sent his little craft into action.

With its small four-inch guns belching fire, the Yarra attempted to lay a smokescreen to escape the enemy, steaming at 30 knots. But the speed of the Japanese vessels was too great, and they trapped the convoy.

OTHER SHIPS SUNK

The mine sweeper also engaged the enemy vessels, firing its entire armament—which consisted of a Hotchkiss gun and two machine guns.

A Japanese cruiser, using eight-inch guns, fired several shots before it wrecked the mine sweeper's bridge. The crew of the sweeper then scuttled their ship and took to the boats.

In true Jap "bushido" style, the cruiser then turned its pompom guns on the lifeboats.

After a while this cruiser moved off, while the second cruiser threw shells at the mine sweeper until it sank in flames.

Throughout this part of the action, both merchantmen also kept blazing at the Japanese vessels. One of the merchant vessels was armed with an anti-submarine gun, while the other carried only machine guns.

Finally one of the merchant ships sank, and a little later the second blew up.

The Japanese cruisers then turned the full force of their guns on the Yarra, while the two aircraft bombed the gallant sloop. It sank shortly before 8 a. m.

Survivors from the mine sweeper floated four days at sea on the Carley floats before being picked up by a passing Dutch ship.

Waldorf CAFETERIAS
AT THE SIGN OF THE RED APPLE..

When it comes to tomato juice, we

PICK and CHOOSE

"TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH, Mr. Curry . . . I salute the place where one gets the best glass of tomato juice in New England."

• Such was the sally that greeted me the other morning as I walked through one of our cafeterias . . . from an acquaintance who smilingly held his glass high aloft as in this way he paid tribute to this delicious drink.

• Stopping beside his table I told this friend of mine that while I appreciated the compliment, yet I did think he had taken in a lot of territory. But he stoutly declared he was right, and because he travelled all six States he thought he was a good judge.

• And he went on to ask me why some tomato juice varied so, and how it was that Waldorf's always seemed to be the same fine delicate flavor. He asked me to sit down and tell him about it.

• In these few words I summed up the situation, as I see it. In the first place, our buyers scour the country for tomato juice which comes only from sun-ripened fruit, fresh from the vines. That gives it that delicate yet fulsome right-from-the-earth flavor that Mother Nature always bestows on fruits or vegetables that have been brought to maturity the natural way.

• Then also, we insist on tomato juice that not only comes from the ruby-red fruit at the height of the crop, but is prepared by careful experts who remove all stems, cores and unripened parts before going to the presses. That makes a vast difference!

• Yes . . . I suppose Waldorf tomato juice is far better than the ordinary commercial variety. The reason being, of course, that we go to the crop, and pick and choose . . . and do not have to accept the run-of-the-mill.

• To prove this, I suggest you try it . . . small glass, 5c, large glass 10c.

Boston Men Missing In Ship Sinking

Several Greater Boston men are among those still missing in the torpedoing of the New England ship.

Third Mate Lawrence T. Sullivan, 41, of St. Andrew rd., East Boston, has followed the sea for 26 years. A native of East Boston, he became the youngest master along the Massachusetts coast after his graduation from Massachusetts Nautical School.

While master of the coal collier M. and J. Tracy at 26, he escaped death when the ship went down with all hands in Massachusetts Bay.

Listed as lost he later reported he had left the ship for a vacation before she sailed.

His excellent seamanship was demonstrated in 1933 when, as skipper of the collier Tad Jones, he executed a course reversal in the teeth of a hurricane.

He was the son of the late Patrolman and Mrs. Maurice Sullivan. He has three sisters and five brothers. Among his brothers are Daniel M., Boston public works department engineer, and William marine engineer, both of West Roxbury.

Oiler Carl L. Anderson, 31, of Court rd., Winthrop, left port last week after a short visit. He had been at sea 10 years. His mother, Mrs. Dena Anderson, 54, of Winthrop, and two sisters, Edith, 26, and Mrs. William Tripp of Winchester, await news of him.

The oldest crewman, George H. Campbell, 74, has followed the sea for 60 years. He promised his wife last week he would return today to their Chelsea st., Charlestown, home.

Patrick Sparrow, 43, of Playstead rd., Medford, was a native of Newfoundland. He had lived in Medford for 12 years, boarding with a family friend, Miss Ellen Hadley. He was single and has no immediate relatives. He had followed the sea for 25 years.

Frank [illegible], whose body was hauled from the water to a life raft, had lived four years at a Washington st., Chelsea, rooming house. His landlady said today he had a brother, Thomas, but she did not know his address.

Forrest McNeil, 27, left his position as porter in Crest st. Service Hotel, Crest ave., in January to join the crew. His only known relative is a brother, James E., in Barrington.

NEW YORK, March 17 (AP)—Tommy Manville, who has been shopping around for a sixth wife, said today that his engagement to Jean Sutherlin, 21-year-old Romney, W. Va., society girl, had been broken because of opposition of his prospective mother-in-law, Mrs. John Corbett of Romney.

"She objects to Jean marrying a man who has had five wives," Manville said.

aided another daughter, Sally, 17 through a lower window.

Baker collapsed just as firemen arrived to take charge and was carried from a blazing porch by Deputy Fire Chief Peter Creedon and Arthur Lundgren of Ladder 27, Boston, who was visiting nearby and volunteered to aid.

Both Baker and his son Kenneth were badly burned, while Sally suffered leg cuts in escaping through a window.

At Hopkinton, Gertrude Dill, 19 paid with her life by returning to the family bungalow at White hall lake in an attempt to save the life of the household cat, Tabby.

The young woman and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Dill, were awakened by a kitchen explosion and all made their way safely from the flaming bungalow.

It was then the girl missed her cat and dashed back into the house. When she failed to reappear, her father followed and suffered burns on the face and hands in an unsuccessful attempt to rescue his daughter. He was treated at Framingham Union Hospital.

At North Wilbraham, Mrs. Lincoln A. Smith, 35, of Manchonis rd., lost her life when fire destroyed the family bungalow.

Her screams were heard by a neighbor, Stephen McNamara, but he was driven back by intense heat. Firemen found the body of the victim on a couch. She was the wife of a Brighton contractor who lived in North Wilbraham only over weekends.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

U. S. Buys Pier For Normandie

NEW YORK, March 17 (AP)—The U. S. Navy is gambling $2,610,000 on the possibility of salvaging the fire-twisted water-logged former French liner Normandie from the Hudson river mudbed.

A check for that amount was despatched yesterday to pay the City of New York for Pier 88, alongside which the transition giant toppled Feb. 9 while being converted to a naval auxiliary Lafayette.

The pier is needed the government said for the "maintenance, repair, renewal and alteration" of the Italian ship, although no assurance has been given that the Normandie can be raised.

GEN. M'ARTHUR NOW IN AUSTRALIA IN SUPREME COMMAND

Philippines, has commanded the amazing defense of those islands, fighting the numerically superior Japanese invaders to a standstill on the peninsula of Bataan.

In accordance with plans carefully drawn prior to the outbreak of the war, MacArthur withdrew his principal forces on Luzon to Bataan, where for weeks he has stalled all attempts of the Japanese to destroy his forces or push them into the sea.

The text of the special communique follows:

"1—Australia:

Gen. Douglas MacArthur arrived in Australia by plane today. He was accompanied by Mrs MacArthur and son, and by his chief of staff, Maj.-Gen. Richard K. Sutherland; Brig.-Gen. Harold H. George of the Air Corps and several other staff officers. He will be the supreme commander in that region, including the Philippine islands, in accordance with request of the Australian government.

ORDERED ON FEB. 22

"On Feb. 22, the President directed Gen. MacArthur to transfer his headquarters from the Philippines to Australia as soon as the necessary arrangements could be made. Gen. MacArthur requested that he be permitted to delay in carrying out the order until he could perfect arrangements within his command in the Philippines. This delay was authorized by the President.

"2—There is nothing to report from other areas."

MacArthur's predecessor as supreme commander in the southwest Pacific was British Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, whose reassignment to command in India was announced on March 2.

At that time no mention was made officially of the possibility that MacArthur would succeed him, although Australian sources had suggested MacArthur from time to time.

Similar suggestions have been made by Wendell L. Willkie, the 1940 Republican presidential nominee; by members of Congress and by American newspapers.

Wavell's reassignment to India was explained as a result of the loss of Malaya and the entry of the Japanese into Sumatra, separating Burma from the Netherlands East Indies.

MacARTHUR SHIFT SECRET

The transfer of all land, sea and air forces in the Netherlands Indies to the command of the Dutch was announced, but no reference was made to a supreme United Nations command in the southwest Pacific area.

It now develops that MacArthur already had been ordered to Australia, but today's announcement made no reference to India or Burma, and there was no immediate indication whether MacArthur's command extended to them.

MacArthur has commanded the Philippine army since 1935, when he completed a tour of duty as chief of staff in the War Department.

Assigned to Manila as military adviser to the Philippine commonwealth government, he undertook the organization and training of the Philippine army, which with United States forces in the Philippines, has defended those islands against the invading Japanese in a campaign that has won the admiration of the world.

HIS BOMBERS AIDED DUTCH

Despite the fact that mobilization of the Philippine army was never completed, MacArthur's principal forces were able to delay the invading Japanese drives to permit withdrawal from Manila, which was declared an open city and was not defended, toward Bataan peninsula on the western side of Manila bay.

It was fast fighting, air forces have, MacArthur's command ordered heavy losses on Japanese invasion fleets, including the sinking of the battleship Haruna off northern Luzon.

The Japanese, however, obtained air superiority almost immediately, and the heavy bombers of MacArthur's forces were withdrawn to the Dutch Indies after enemy bombing had destroyed the usefulness of their bases.

MacArthur still retained, however, an unspecified number of pursuit planes, which he fitted out temporarily as bombers for destructive raids against Japanese installations in the Philippines.

To date the Japanese have extended their control in the Philippines only over the major portion of Luzon, the Island of Masbate and a part of the southern Island of Mindanao.

EVEN BEAT JAPS BACK

MacArthur, his communications apparently still in good order, has been able to keep in touch with the operation of numerous guerrilla bands on the Phillipine islands, including such irregular forces in the portions of Luzon which the Japanese supposedly had occupied completely.

Backed by the huge guns of Corregidor and 16 other island forts at the entrance of Manila bay, MacArthur succeeded in stabilizing a line across Bataan peninsula, and not only has stopped every Japanese attempt to advance against him for weeks, but has even regained small sections of territory previously occupied by the Japanese.

The successful resistance by his greatly outnumbered forces was cited by the War Department several days ago as the cause of persistent reports of the Hara-Kiri, or ceremonial suicide, of Lieut. Gen. Masaharu Homma, commanding Japanese forces in the Philippines.

Homma was succeeded by Lieut.-Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, who commanded the successful Japanese campaign in Malaya which resulted in the capture of Singapore. Since the announcement that the conqueror of Malaya had taken over the job of fighting MacArthur, there have been frequent predictions that it heralded an all-out drive to complete the Japanese occupation of Luzon.

JAPS STILL WAITING

The drive has not materialized, however, and for a week the War Department communiques have reported the continued absence of either ground or air activity in Bataan.

Military circles here have attributed MacArthur's successes in the Philippines to his already well known brilliance as a tactician which they say included an ability to choose for his staff some of the Army's best officers.

MacArthur, a native of Little Rock, Ark., had a famous career in the Army before his assignment to the Philippines. A brigade commander and later the Rainbow Division commander during the first World War, he was only 38 years old when it ended—MacArthur returned to the United States to become superintendent of West Point in 1919, and in the early 1920's served a tour of duty in the Philippines which stood him in good stead when he returned many years later as adviser to the Philippine government.

NAMED FUEL GENERAL

He was chief of staff at the age of 50, and retired from the Army with the rank of full general in 1937, although remaining a field marshal in the Philippine Army. After the war with Japan started last December, MacArthur was reappointed a full general and commander of United States Army forces in the western Pacific area.

Until his assignment to Australia, however, his command actually covered only the Philippine islands.

Evidences of his brilliant career are the 23 decorations which his own and other governments have conferred on him.

He holds the distinguished Service Cross and the Distinguished Service Medal, both with oak leaf clusters. He has the Silver Star for gallantry in action, and with it six oak leaf clusters, each representing an action which would justify the award of another Silver Star.

He also was decorated four times by the French government, and by the governments of Belgium, Italy, Mexico, Yugoslavia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Rumania and Ecuador.

NEW COMMANDER? — Although the War Department is silent, it is believed that Maj. Jonathan M. Wainwright of MacArthur's staff, may be in active command of the American-Filipino forces in Bataan. Yesterday, it was noted, he sent greetings to officials at U. S. Naval Military Academy on its 140th anniversary.

M'ARTHUR NEWS HAILED IN CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP) —News that Gen. Douglas MacArthur had arrived in Australia as supreme commander of United Nations forces surprised and cheered members of Congress today.

Sen. Hayden (D.) of Arizona said the announcement "ought to be very stimulating to the morale of all troops. It puts a very brave and capable soldier at their head. He would not have left Bataan unless its defense was in good hands."

Chairman Connally (D.) of Texas, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said:

"General MacArthur will give great leadership to the United Nations' forces in Australia. It is fortunate for the civilized world that he is there. The democracies are thrilled and will respond gloriously to his generalship.

The only woman Senator, Hattie Caraway (D.) of Arkansas, said

"That should relieve a lot of people back home who have been writing me to get MacArthur out."

Secretary of War Stimson was laconic in telling of the arrival of the AEF in the Antipodes.

The use of the expression, "in considerable numbers," had a heartening sound for the capital for it was recalled that the official announcement of the arrival of American troops in northern Ireland carefully avoided any such mention of strength.

The belief here was that the mighty convoys which transported the thousands of troops and the tons of supplies and equipment probably traversed 12,000 miles in a sweeping arc through the trackless South Pacific before reaching the unnamed Australian port of debarkation.

Under normal circumstances a voyage from the Pacific coast to the Antipodes takes about 40 days, and a convoy's pace is necessarily slower. It seem likely, therefore, that the units now in Australia embarked from American ports in January. Indeed, some may have been at sea within less than a month after Pearl Harbor.

MacArthur's 2 Aides Go Also

WASHINGTON, March 17 (INS) —The two American generals who flew with Gen. MacArthur to Australia fought side by side with him during the 11-week siege in the Philippines.

They are Maj.-Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, chief of staff to MacArthur, and Brig.-Gen. Harold H. George of the Air Corps.

Gen. Sutherland, a native of Hancock, Md., is the son of former U. S. Sen. Howard Sutherland of West Virginia.

A graduate of Yale in 1916, Sutherland served during the Mexican border crisis from July 10, 1916, to Aug. 30, 1916.

Sutherland is an expert on the Far East. On July 3, 1937, he went to Tientsin, China, to command a batalion of the 15th infantry and the following March he was transferred to Manila as adviser on budgetary affairs and procurement for the Philippine army.

Gen. George is a native of Lockport, N. Y. He also saw active service on the Mexican border in 1916. He served in France from Nov. 1, 1917, principally as commander of two air squadrons and also as a flight instructor.

In 1936 George brushed up on aeronautics by enrolling in the air corps tactical school at Maxwell Field, Ala. Later he served at several air bases in the United States before he was assisted to the Philippines March 3, 1941.

Wainwright New Philippine Chief

WASHINGTON, March 17 (INS.) —With the transfer of Gen. Douglas MacArthur to Australia, Maj.-Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright becomes commander of the American-Filipino forces in the Philippines, a War Department spokesman said today.

Born in Walla Walla, Wash., Aug. 23, 1883, Wainwright succeeds temporarily to MacArthur's post as the senior officer in the Manila area.

Wainwright is an expert cavalry tactician and was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1906.

N. E. HAILS M'ARTHUR, SPEEDS WAR WORK

News of the appointment of Gen. Douglas MacArthur as supreme United Nations commander in the Southwest Pacific today was expected to stimulate war production.

Everywhere among the workers in the "arsenals of democracy" in New England the appointment was acclaimed by the workers.

"It's wonderful! He's the guy that belongs there!" exclaimed an official at a big shipbuilding plant. "It will lift the morale of us all. Of course, it will stimulate production. Don't worry, we'll all get behind MacArthur, rightly called 'The Magnificent.'"

Prolonged cheering greeted the announcement of the appointment of Gen. MacArthur at a meeting of 250 manufacturers and labor leaders in Gardner Auditorium at the State House.

The group had assembled to devise means of speeding war production.

Thomas Wilkinson, chairman of the regional office of the labor supply committee of the War Production Board, interrupted the proceedings to announce the news. The big auditorium vibrated with cheers of the labor men and employers.

At a nearby big electrical plant engaged in war work the news came as a complete surprise. Said an official of the company:

"In my opinion, and I believe it is the opinion of us all, the appointment of MacArthur will strengthen the cause of the United Nations. Certainly it will stimulate war work. His capabilities will be more valuable in Australia than in Bataan."

Irene Rich Aids Pig Stork

VAN NUYS, Cal., March 17 (AP)—Irene Rich is learning the facts of farming the hard way.

The actress stayed up until the wee hours of the morning "to help my sow have pigs. And she wasn't the least bit cooperative. She seemed downright unappreciative of my efforts."

Irene Rich

Miss Rich, who got her first farm facts from bees—they stung her—still wants to know what happened to three of her pigs.

"I counted carefully, and there were 14. The sow stepped on one, and there were 13.

But in the morning there were only 10.

She was astounded by a suggestion that the sow, true to sow nature, might have eaten the three

"Good heavens, I hope I still have 10 when I get home," she exclaimed.

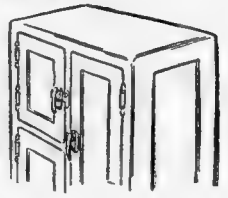
This is an Icebox

You can sell an icebox to an Eskimo. It has been done. Iceboxes are to keep food cold in hot weather, and believe it or not, it gets hot in Alaska.



The important thing is to reach the buyer when the time is ripe.

Newspaper advertisements are the best way to do this—they show buyers the article for sale, tell them its merits, quote its price and direct buyers to where it is sold—at the time when they most want to buy.

For instance, most people want bathing suits in summer; most people want overshoes in winter.

BUT IT TAKES MORE THAN TIMELINESS TO PLANT IDEAS IN PEOPLE'S MINDS. IDEAS HAVE TO BE REPEATED REGULARLY TO THEM.

This is a Preacher

Every Sunday thousands of preachers talk to their congregations about religion. Religion meets one of the greatest needs of mankind, but people have to be reminded of it time and again, must have religion interpreted to them week after week, in order that it can do them good in their daily lives.

So it is with any idea, big or small. It takes REPETITION to make it stick in people's minds, whether the idea is that stealing is wicked, or that Vitamin B_1 is good for you, or that the XYZ Company makes good bathing suits.

All people don't want to buy the same things at the same time, and advertisers must prepare them for the time when they do want to buy. A lady probably wouldn't be thinking of buying a bathing suit if she is going to a wedding today.

But the advertiser wants her to realize right now that his bathing suits are the best bathing suits, so that she will be thinking about them when she gets ready to go on a vacation.

On the other hand, there are mighty few days on which any man or woman may not need a cake of soap, a can of soup or a safety pin.

That's why you'll find the real necessities are advertised regularly in newspapers.

When business is better in this town everybody benefits. When everybody in the town knows what's going on all over the world, each man can tell better how to vote, what to buy and how to protect himself.

Read these ads each week. Tell your friends to read them. They tell you what an important part your newspaper has in helping you to know what's going on, so you can decide what you personally are going to do about it all.

The publisher of this paper wants to serve the community the best he possibly can. If you have any suggestions or questions or criticisms don't hesitate to write him a letter. It will receive personal attention.

3 NEAR DEATH AFTER KITCHEN STOVE BLAST

Critically burned when a kitchen stove exploded, spraying them with flaming oil, a 75-year-old South Boston woman, her son and small granddaughter were on the danger list at City Hospital today

Heroic rescue work by neighbors saved the trio from death after the range explosion occurred, in the apartment of Mrs. Bridget Philbin Her son, John, 33, and grandchild, six-year-old Joan Willett of Beach st, Dorchester, were visiting her at the time

Joan, farthest from the stove, did not suffer the full impact of the blast, and she managed to race from the apartment, her hair and clothing aflame. A neighbor extinguished the flames and she was taken to City Hospital in a police cruiser

Both Mrs. Philbin and John were knocked to the floor and turned into living torches by the explosion. Despite his condition, John struggled to his feet, picked up his aged mother and staggered to the hallway, where he collapsed.

Hearing cries of fire, Nunzio Cavarro, first floor occupant, rushed to the top floor and found the couple in flames on the floor He smothered the flames with his topcoat and carried Mrs. Philbin and then John from the building.

They were sent to the City Hospital, where both are reported in a critical condition.

Robot Sentries Guard Fences at Defense Plants

WILMINGTON, Del., March 17 (AP) Silent sentries, many times more efficient than men in storm, fog and darkness, are guarding miles of wire fence enclosing many of the nation's war-production plants, the duPont Company disclosed today.

They're robots

Six months of tests have proved the new sentry system the most efficient yet devised, the company said, with the robots "hearing" a person's whisper or the snip of a wire-cutter and passing these warning sounds instantly to a watchman at his post or to a central guard station inside the plant.

"The acoustic fence" apparatus has the effect of multiplying by many times the number of guards on duty in adverse weather and at night, when guards would have to be placed almost elbow to elbow to provide protection, duPont engineers said

The robot sentinels can keep an about 24 hour watch over fences often 15 or 20 miles long, they explained, enabling the human guard to hear what is going on for several miles along the line and to tell instantly the location of any disturbance.

The device is said to be so sensitive that during tests the twittering of a sparrow and the sound of wind blowing through the fence were clearly heard in a guard-house more than a mile away.

The fence itself serves as the Robot's "ears," transmitting sounds much like a telegraph wire, engineers said

Wing Design Tells Identity of Planes

Here is the fourth lesson in the Junior Victory Army Plane "Spotting" Course taken from Elementary Aircraft Identification, a manual compiled by Frederick R. Hazard, chairman aeronautic committee, Rhode Island American Legion, and civilian director Aircraft Warning Service.

LESSON FOUR

As yesterday's lesson explained, there are four classifications for the different arrangements of wings in relation to the fuselage.

These are flat, gull wing, dihedral and that having a negative dihedral inner section.

The last one is the most important. It is used very often by German designers. The outstanding Nazi plane which is constructed along this line is the "Stuka" dive bomber. A second is the Elohm and Voss troop transport which can carry 30 men and their equipment for distances up to 2000 miles.

Wings may also be attached to the fuselage at various angles. The plane may be of high wing, mid-wing, low wing or parasol wing construction. The silhouettes show these different types.

The wing tips may be round, which is the most common shape or they may be square, raked or elliptical. The square wing tip is often a useful factor in identification. It appears on the PBY of the American Navy, on the Gruman navy fighter and on the German Messerschmitt.

DIFFICULT TO PRODUCE

The elliptical wing is almost never seen as it is used only on the fully elliptical wing which is ideal from the point of view of a designer but difficult to turn out on a mass production basis.

Generally the shape of the wings and their method of attachment to the fuselage constitute the most valuable elements in aircraft identification from the ground. In a few cases the wings give positive identification but in almost every case they form the foundation on to which other elements are added

For example a straight wing on a U. S. plane means it is either a PBY or an O-49. If it is a seaplane then it is the first. If it has a fixed landing gear and a parasol wing, then it is the latter.

Observing from a head-on position, a plane is seen to have a marked negative dihedral angle on the inner section. If it is an American machine it must be the F4U of the U. S. Navy because this is the only plane in our armed forces using this type of construction.

FURTHER IDENTIFICATION

If it is an enemy plane, it might be one of several German planes. Further observation would be required for positive identification. If in addition, for instance, it had a fixed landing gear, it would be a "stuka" dive bomber and nothing else.

JVA members will employ their time to useful advantage if they thoroughly study the various types of wings. Remember this rule:

The greater the distance for which the aircraft is designed, the wider the wings will be from tip to tip and the narrower from leading edge to trailing edge.

The pursuit machine must have a compact, stubby wing; the troop transport must have a wing with large area to carry its load and the bomber must have a wing that is long and narrow.

(Watch for tomorrow's lesson in the Daily Record. It will deal with the importance of the nose, cockpit and fuselage as means of identification).

Victory Orchid Highlight of Show

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Monday—Yesterday in New York City, was spent partly in seeing people with whom I had appointments, and partly in trying to allocate the things which have to be packed in our two houses.

I went to my broadcast and was met there by a young woman who had sent me a questionnaire for her magazine article, and was not very well satisfied with my answers. She felt that if she could see me, I would give her more satisfactory information, so we journeyed back to the house in a taxi while she tried to gather the answers she needed.

I took the night train back to Washington and found that the crowd was so great that they were running it in three sections. There is certainly no lack of people traveling these days by train and plane.

I noticed a New York Times editorial which referred to the anniversary of the death of Dolley Madison. Hadn't Orchid thank it is a good thing to remember, even in the midst of war and rumors of war, we can stop to think about a woman who has given us pleasure and to contrast the writing of melodies such as "Darling Nelly Gray."

This year is the 21st anniversary of the founding of the National Society for Crippled Children. They are assembling and conducting their Easter seal sale between March 30 and April 5. This sale finances them during the year and it is important for them to keep on with the good work they have been doing.

It is so easy to forget our usual concerns in the midst of new demands, that I feel we should all think over and check up on the items down in our income taxes which may easily be forgotten.

I am sorry that I did not get down to see the opening of the flower show in New York City and I hope to see it [illegible]

GEN. MACARTHUR . . . TAKES O

OUR DAILY CITATION: To all the officials, wardens and volunteers whose splendid civic-mindedness and ability to carry out instructions made Boston's first blackout a conspicuous success. Mayor LaGuardia of New York City, who witnessed the test, did not overstate the truth when he said: "The event was extraordinary beyond all reasonable expectations."

THE United States should bring General Douglas MacArthur back from beleaguered Bataan.

Then the United States should give this truly competent military leader a voice in the running of the war that will be heard and obeyed.

GENERAL MacARTHUR
America Needs His Genius and Experience

General MacArthur has shown the world what he can do.

He may have spared words more than some of our other warriors.

But General MacArthur has not spared ACTION, and that is the thing that counts in wartime.

Everybody, soldier and civilian alike, feels a healthy rush of American pride surging through his veins when he considers how MacArthur and his men, outnumbered though never outbraved, have held out resolutely and effectively day after day, week after week, against the might of Japan.

To lose such a genius, to sacrifice him needlessly would be an indication of official blundering comparable to the errors which paved the way for the slap at Pearl Harbor and the near-knockdown blow at Singapore.

This democratic country of ours should not treat MacArthur as Mussolini treated General Italo Balbo by relegating MacArthur to obscurity as the Fascist premier relegated the Italian hero to Libya.

Instead, we citizens, whose lives and fortunes are hinged upon the outcome of this war, should insist that the provenly efficient General MacArthur get authority and power to give the Japs the pound beating they deserve and most certainly should receive.

WE SHOULD REMEMBER that MacArthur is not a military flash in the pan.

He was No. 1 man in his class at West Point 39 years ago.

He was a major of engineers when the United States went to war in April, 1917.

Soon he was commissioned colonel and made chief of staff of the celebrated Rainbow Division.

A year later, as brigadier general, he led the 84th Infantry Brigade in the first strictly American battle of the war, the reduction of the St. Mihiel salient.

Spurning a mahogany desk and an upholstered chair, he personally led his men in some of the most severe fighting of World War No. I, was gassed in the Salient du Feye and wounded at Exermont.

He emerged from the conflict with the Distinguished Service Cross, awarded only for bravery in actual fighting, and the Oak Leaf Cluster, the equivalent of a second cross.

After a distinguished peacetime career, which included the superintendency of West Point, he became Army chief of staff with the rank of full general.

In that capacity he introduced the four-army defense system, increased the Air Corps to 2500 planes, enlarged the enlisted personnel by 46,500, and began modernization of the national defense system of widespread use of armored cars, tanks and other battle vehicles calculated to speed up the tempo of action.

Not without reason did President Roosevelt write to him three years ago:

"Your record in war and peace is a brilliant chapter in American history."

But General MacArthur's book is not finished.

The most important chapter of all remains to be written.

Let us bring him back now to write it with the defeats which as a proud, unconquered nation must inflict on the Japs and

Douglas MacArthur from the hopelessness of his position on Bataan Peninsula, Philippine Islands, the Boston Evening American, two days before President Roosevelt ordered his transfer to Australia, published this editorial. Saint Patrick

By Cardinal O'Connell

O glorious Saint of Erin
Whose wondrous work and word
Implanted deep in Irish hearts
The faith of Christ the Lord.
O'er all the earth thy children
Thy sweet protection claim
And loyally they keep the love
Of dear Saint Patrick's name.

For centuries thy people
Have bowed beneath the rod
Of cruel wrong, but never yet
Have they forsaken God.
For Ireland's faith has never failed
And in her darkest night
Her children brave have kept the truth
And struggled for the right.

The seed which thou hath planted
Now blooms in every clime,
Thy tears and prayers, St. Patrick dear,
Have made its strength sublime.
While other nations barter
Their God for power and gold
The Faith of Erin still remains
As loyal as of old.

WE BELIEVE this beautiful hymn from the inspired pen of William Cardinal O'Connell to be the best tribute to Saint Patrick that American and Irish literature contains.

With the Cardinal's kind permission, we are publishing it on this anniversary of the universally-revered patron of Ireland in the knowledge that thousands of our readers will want to clip and treasure the lovely expression of faith and thankfulness.

THE FLOWER SHOW, New England's seventy-first and biggest, opened yesterday in Boston's large Mechanics Building.

The important exposition serves two useful purposes this year: It is a happy reminder that another hopeful Spring is just around the calendar corner. And it invites us all to dismiss the cares and sorrows of war while we enjoy the beauty that only Nature can create.

A patriotic innovation are the Victory Garden exhibits, and the many people who view them will surely be encouraged to devote much space in their own back yards to vegetable raising.

Everyone should see this splendid show.

Ah! Do you think,
You little goose, all bliss is
Changeless and forever true?
Things that to the soul seem nearest
Leave us, looming less and less
Hearts forget, and eyes the dearest
Drowse in loveless listlessness.
—HEINE.

"COME ON, large boy, give us a smile," writes a Chicagoan, referring to my photograph. Our object has always been to please the customer. But first I must decide on the type of smile to be used. Should it be a Mrs. Fezziwig type, "one vast substantial smile?" or should it be a Bert Harte Chinese model smile, that is "child-like and bland?" Or what? And do you think if the smile is ever present it might give an impression such as that referred to in the lines:

Eternal smiles his emptiness betray
As shallow streams run dimpling all the way.

SIDELIGHTS: Chicago had a cherry pie making contest. Don't know why they picked cherry pie to compete with. The most difficult kind of pie to make properly is lemon meringue . . . In Honolulu, where the blackout is on every night, wartime restrictions also limit autoists to 10 gallons of gasoline a month. And a quart of liquor a week. That doesn't sound so hard to take. You can go around 150 miles on 10 gallons of gasoline. And on a quart of liquor a week a man could have two very good home-made highballs a day, which is plenty for a gentleman . . . Kent Cooper, top man of the Associated Press, can now be added to the list of celebrated executives who have married their secretaries. This again brings to mind that the record indicates girls who have had business experience make the best wives, and that of the business girls the secretaries usually prove to be the best mates. So the man who marries a private secretary really gets something colossal in the way of a mate.

PLEASE NOTE: A sign in the Harlem office of Father Divine reads: "The abundance of fullness occupies the entire area of this office. Therefore there can be no loitering" . . . If the smoke of a cigar is the color of milk it is a good cigar. If the smoke is a sky blue color it is a bad cigar . . . The residents of Los Angeles, Cal., are divided on the question of the pronunciation of the city's name. There are three versions, users of each claiming their way is correct. 1. Los-Anjeles. 2. Loche-Ahng-Hail-Ais. 3. Loss-Ann-Hell-Ess.

ALMOST CONFIDENTIAL: As to what makes a good wife, Robert Burns claimed good nature was of 40 per cent importance and good sense 20 per cent. Mr. Burns gave sense of humor 10 per cent, charm and good looks 10 per cent, education 10 per cent, breeding 10 per cent. Keep this in mind, young fellow, the next time a girl proposes to you . . . Said Henry Ford: "It is usual to associate age with years because so many men and women somewhere along what is called middle age stop trying." Henry has something there. But what period can at this time properly be styled "middle age?" I think a middle-aged man is one between 55 and 65.

PASSING BY: John Hay Whitney, enjoys an inheritance which includes the income from a $27,000,000 trust fund. He is reported to have paid a $3,000,000 divorce settlement when his last marriage went on the rocks. This is the United States record for such settlements. Mr. Whitney recently married again. The current Mrs. Whitney is Betsey Cushing Roosevelt, former wife of Capt. James Roosevelt . . . Rise Stevens. The only Metropolitan Opera star ever born in New York City. Her married name is Mrs. Walter Szurovy. And around her neck, as piece of jewelry, she wears a chain with a tag on it. On the tag it says: "I am the property of Walter Szurovy." Though a great believer in people who love their matrimonial mates not being afraid to admit it, I think this is carrying the idea to excess.

RISE STEVENS IN SCENE WITH NELSON EDDY
She Wears Tag Proclaiming She Belongs to Husband

ASIDES: "You are so understanding as to the feelings of lonely people," writes a Milwaukee subscriber. Thanks, lady. But I don't know why I should be. Because I have been really lonely but once in my life; and that was when I had to wait four hours for a train connection in Honesdale, Pa.

BRIEFLY: In St. Louis a girl named Slupsky married a man named Broadsky and the happy pair named their first male child Slupsky Broadsky . . . Some medicos claim an expectant mother shouldn't smoke more than five cigarettes a day . . . The New Yorker magazine formerly devoted to dealing with the doings of the midtown Manhattan intelligentsia has been expanding quite a little in recent years. In the last issue the editor recommended a cold cure, namely: "Hot toddy, aspirin and 12 hours in bed." Sound all right to me.

SAYS HE: "As to that adolescent of Chicago who signed herself "Seventeen" and gushed about the pretty music played by Glenn Miller," writes a Chicago bachelor. "She sounds like a typical jitterbug. They are always ready to cut a rug but try to get them to sweep one. Most of these dance-mad cuties are absolutely useless around the house. They let their mothers do all the work. They are self-centered, selfish and cold-hearted. When a man marries a jitterbug he certainly does so at his peril. Give me an old-fashioned girl who likes to waltz. I'm looking for a girl like the girl that married dear old dad. Not one of the inefficient egotistical jitterbug type of females, of which Chicago has all too many."

THAT THE WELL-KNOWN EMOTION, LOVE, is a powerful miracle-maker—this corner wouldn't attempt to disprove . . . Besides the poets' tributes, there has been a song about the efficacy of the grand emotion entitled "Love Will Find a Way" . . . (Perhaps that was poetry, too) . . . But from Hollywood, via Miami and the cupid-bow lips of Mrs. Ben Gaines (who was Joan Abbott, the nightclub singer before she married the Boston nightclub and hotel operator) comes a story of what love has achieved in the case of Carl (Junior) Laemmle.

SON OF THE BELOVED "Uncle Carl" Laemmle, the movie pioneer, Junior was the mighty mite of the studios for awhile, the "while" being when his adoring daddy made him president of Universal at the ripe old age of 22 . . . Junior was somewhat handicapped by the fact that he towered to the great height of five feet one, which is too small even for a convincing takeoff of Napoleon.

WELL, JUNIOR FELL IN LOVE, and the object of his affection was none other than the lovely and athletic Jinx Falkenberg, one of the tallest kids in the movie business . . . Mrs. Gaines, who swears the story is true and that she can prove it, says that Junior found the disparagement in height between him and the girl he loved so acutely discomforting that he set out upon heroic measures to correct it . . . Having a few millions at his disposal, all the modern stretching devices were possible . . . And after a stint of hard-trying, Junior actually elongated himself a full inch and a half . . . It was now possible for him to walk down the avenue with the girl of his dreams without giving an imitation of a tourist loose amid the high buildings of Radio City whenever he felt the urge to draw a sight above the lovely Jinx's swinging shoulders . . . What happened? . . . So he is now in the Army . . . His added height has made him acceptable.

MIKE (THE PRINCE) ROMANOFF, whose gentleness endeared him to a group of Hollywood stars with enough spare change to back him in a restaurant, has turned out to be so bellicose of late that he is driving trade to his rivals . . . Prosperity has gone slightly to The Romanoff's head reports have it . . . Shed of all vestiges of royal dignity, the most vivid memory Boston newspapermen hold of the now-pugnacious Prince is his flight down Broadway (Boston) after being pelted with opened eggs in the town's foremost speakeasy . . . The cops were in pursuit, too

BEATRICE KAY OF THE "GAY NINETIES" radio show opened at the Latin Quarter Sunday, but she took time out Monday to be in New York for her weekly air appearance . . . She is the girl who yodels the old songs in a booming and vibrating falsetto . . . Her "straight" voice is of fine timber and she can really sing, however.

WALLY BOAG, WHO makes peculiar figures and animals from various types of colored balloons, is the headliner of the Fen-gate's new Satire Room, where the entertainment is continuous . . . Freddie and Lucille Roberts, two Boston favorites who specialize in mind-reading and magic, and Anne Therese White, a "chanteuse," are also present

HARRY RITZ is booked for the Army . . . It won't be the men in uniform who'll be heckling Ted (The Kid) Williams this season at Fenway Park, you can wager . . . The mail indicates that . . . Those who are steaming hot on the Williams deferment are sideliners in the big show . . . Out of 18 variegated missives commenting critically on Teddy's case, not one signatory had "Pvt," or "Sergt."—or any other military title—in parentheses before the name . . . Please try to hear two youngsters named Mai and Freddy Dearborn at the Garden Lounge of the Rio Casino . . . They are bigtime in the making for sure. (More about them another day.)

IRENE DUNNE SIGNS FINE CONTRACT

By Loulla O. Parsons

Irene Dunne

HOLLYWOOD, March 17—A movie mogul once told me when Irene Dunne was wanted for a role no other actress would do. There are certain parts that are "Irene Dunne" roles and that's all there is to it.

I think this womanly dignity of hers, better than anything else, explains Irene's long and blooming career. For believe me, she is going as strong now after 14 years in pictures as she was when she started.

Few actresses are being given four-picture contracts these days, but a four-picture commitment is exactly what Irene has been handed at Columbia.

Don't say I told you, but it looks like her first assignment will be "The American Way" the Frederic March-Florence Eldridge stage hit for which Harry Cohn paid $275,000 for the screen rights.

That's the Dunne luck for you again! What pictures she gets and for that matter, what directors!

George Stevens will produce and direct "The American Way" and George, according to another fine actress Katharine Hepburn, is the best director in Hollywood. Remember, Katie said that—not I

KATHARINE HEPBURN

I HAVE TALKED with Louis B. Mayer often enough to know how opposed he is to trusting any of the M-G-M pictures to a novice. So I think I see his fine Italian hand in William Saroyan's goal to direct one of his own short stories "A Number of the Poor," before he starts giving directorial orders on "The Human Comedy."

It would be extremely foolish to put a inexperienced director on so expensive a movie as "The Human Comedy."

"A Number of the Poor" is a short and will have Gene Kelly of "Pal Joey" fame as the star, and Saroyan can show his ideas on technique and what have you without losing his own respect or M-G-M's money.

Beauty

YOU CAN BE BEAUTIFUL—Today's news, Says Arline Gould, is an entrancingly fragranced "cream cologne," which doesn't depend on government-requisitioned alcohol to be a standby perfume device . . . She says it has many unusual qualities.

NEW 'CREAM COLOGNE' GORGEOUSLY SCENTED

By ARLINE GOULD

THERE'S ONE THING of which you all may be sure, the cosmetic industry won't let you down my more than good old Uncle Sam will . . . and about the first exciting demonstrations of getting far more than the last ounce of shaky substance into expensive containers will be gorgeously scented cream cologne.

Perfumed colognes have a large proportion of alcohol in them . . . and you know how badly the government needs alcohol. The cream cologne has all the gaiety . . . the cologne as far as glamorous fragrance goes . . . and in addition it is full of lusciously rich oils that make it really far better for you skin than genuine cologne.

It's true that we didn't have a great many complaints about the effect of cologne on dry skins . . . but there were a few. So here's their answer, as well as yours . . . for even though you were not aware of any drying tendency in your pet cologne, now you'll be far more aware of the wonderful balm in this one which makes your skin much more satiny than it's ever been.

Don't think for a moment of this cream cologne as an anti-chap device . . . it's just as grand to use in hot weather. It's not sticky or gaesy, nor will it rub off on clothes.

Among the several fragrances there is one which to us is outstanding . . . it has a great deal of attention-getting quality. And here's the surprise about it . . . though it is vastly becoming to your own feminine personality . . . lots of the biggest he-men we know have been charmed with the effect of a dash of the liquid cologne on their own mops. The cream cologne will go over terrifically as an after-shave lotion . . . it just about makes them irresistible!

The cream cologne starts at a $1.50 in a choice of three gorgeous scents.

To learn about this unique new development, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, except the weekend, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

NEWS FOR MODERN WOMEN

By Martha Lee

ROAST LOIN OF PORK is always popular and as the center of the menu it's easy to plan things around it. From the time the pork loin starts roasting with the slot broiler as often, it's delicious flavor and [illegible] first place in assuring the success of a perfect meal.

If the backbone is loosened from the ribs at the market, you will find carving easier. Season the meat with salt and pepper and place with bones down in an open roasting pan. A rack is not necessary, as the bones keep the meat from the drippings. Insert [illegible] thermometer so that the [illegible] reaches the center of the largest muscle. Roast in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) until the meat thermometer registers 185 deg. F., allowing about 30 to 35 minutes per pound for roasting. Long slow cooking brings out the delicate flavor of roast pork. The pan should not be covered, and no water should be added.

CARVING THE ROAST

Remove the backbone before the roast is brought to the table by running the knife close to and parallel with the backbone. This facilitates carving. When carving, have the meat placed with the rib side facing you. Then follow the rib bones, which are the guides for slicing. Make sure of the slant of the ribs before you carve, as all the ribs are not perpendicular to the platter.

Left-over roast pork offers many interesting possibilities, for the pork flavor blends well with different foods. Pork and apple, for example, is an excellent combination from the standpoint of digestibility as well as flavor.

SERVE roast loin of pork as the center of the menu.

PORK AND APPLE SALAD

2 cups cooked pork, diced
3 to 4 apples, diced
1 cup carrots, grated
1 cup celery, minced
½ green pepper, minced
Mayonnaise

Have ingredients icy cold. Then [illegible] milk, [illegible] and to [illegible] When [illegible] [illegible] lettuce cups.

BAKED APPLE STUFFED WITH PORK

1 [illegible]
6 [illegible] to ten
4 [illegible]
1 tbsp. [illegible] sugar
1 tbsp. butter

Core apples and season with [illegible]. Pare apples and cut out centers. Fill with pork. Mix brown sugar and butter and place a bit on each apple. Bake in moderate oven 375 deg. F. [illegible] in the pan, for 40 to 50 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Rich brown prepared mustard and prepared horseradish give a real gourmet touch to left-over pork in the following recipe:

PORK DIABLE

2 cups cooked pork, sliced
2 tbsp. pork drippings, olive oil or butter
½ cup catsup
1 tbsp. prepared mustard
1 tbsp. prepared horseradish
½ cup boiling water
Salt, pepper

Mix hot fat with catsup, mustard, horseradish, boiling water and seasoning. When well blended, add sliced pork and simmer very slowly until meat is thoroughly hot, or heat in a pan over hot water.

Sliced roast pork, heated in mustard sauce or any desired sauce and served on toast, is an interesting variation of the above recipe.

MUSTARD SAUCE

1 cup cream
½ cup sugar
2 tbsp. dry mustard
½ cup vinegar
2 egg yolks
½ tsp. salt

Scald in double boiler. Dissolve mustard in a little of the cream and add together with the sugar. Add salt to egg yolks, beat well and pour a little of the hot cream over them, stirring constantly. Add egg yolks carefully to the rest of the cream, then the vinegar, and stir continuously. Cook over hot water until sauce is smooth and thick, taking great care that it does not curdle. This is good for fish or egg dishes.

YOUTHFUL HOSTESS

If you want your young daughter to acquire poise encourage her to invite her contemporaries to her home. The high school girl who can plan an evening of bridge or other games and serve simple refreshments to her friends is learning how to be a gracious hostess.

Fashion

SATIN HATS really haven't been done very nicely since the gals wore little satin scoops in early Victorian days . . . probably because a satin hat must be frankly romantic to be effective. The designer Walter Powell saw his chance this spring . . . and here's one of the loveliest he showed in the famed Cotillion Room of the Pierre the other day. It's a small sailor in butter colored satin, with forget-me-nots and midget roses tossed around the brim. Soft brown net veiling drapes casually from the back of the crown.

THIS DRESSMAKER SUIT FLATTERING TO MANY

By BETTINA BEDWELL

WE'VE BEEN hearing and seeing so much of the very simple tailored suit, what with uniforms for our girls up in the limelight, it may be overlooked that soft, dressmaker suits are just as much in fashion. And, I may add, they are a lot more flattering to a lot of women.

What should be kept in mind is that the dressmaker suit is just as beautifully tailored as the more severe kind, and just as easy to wear all day long. It merely goes a little easier on you in its details.

An ideal dressmaker suit, designed by that master of the softened suit, Mainbocher, is sketched by Miss Dahn. This suit was designed for Katharine Cornell to wear in her new play, "Rose Burke." It is made of a sand beige wool crepe, and the jacket is longer than hip-length, and therefore more becoming to many.

The revers are softened by rounded scallops, and this gracefully curved line is repeated in the seams at the sides of the front. The skirt is not severe and skimpy, but gently flared, though far from flaring.

The Masked Jury

SUITOR STRAYS

CAN SHE WIN HIM BACK?

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN OF THE JURY: About two years ago I met a fellow and I learned to love him. After seven months I took him home to meet my parents.

He was in love with me and wouldn't let me see any other fellow. I didn't mind that because I was in love with him. He then told me to start saving things; that we were to be married. Then, after going with him for a year, he started to act cool toward me and told me he didn't want to go steady now.

At first I thought it was his parents, but later I found it wasn't and wanted to know the reason for the separation. I wrote him a letter but received no answer. Shortly after that I saw him at a dance and he still wouldn't tell me the reason. I've seen him at several dances with another girl, and he never asks me for a dance.

When I do see him without this girl, he always tries to boss me around and he goes around telling people he still loves me.

Do you think I should still hold hopes for him?

HOW THE JURY VOTED
Women: Yes, one; no, five.
Men: Yes, none; no, six

SALESGIRL: No. If she's a smart girl she will get herself back in circulation and fast, too.

BUS DRIVER: No. As far as that guy goes, she's living in a ghost town.

WAITRESS: No. I wouldn't wait for that fellow if he was the last man in the world.

STENOGRAPHER: No. The best thing for her is to forget him. He certainly is acting as if he wants to forget her.

MAGAZINE SALESMAN: No. When a girl can't get a man to dance with her she should take it for granted that it is all over.

RECEPTIONIST: Yes; if he still goes around telling people he loves her. Maybe there is some misunderstanding she can correct.

PRINTER'S HELPER: No. She wrote him a letter and he didn't answer. What does she want—a declaration of war?

HOUSEWIFE: No. In my opinion this young lady would be very foolish to go on wasting her time waiting for someone who no longer shows interest.

ACCOUNTANT: No. And she ought to be glad it happened before they were married instead of afterward.

OFFICE WORKER (woman): No. Some girls never know when they're licked. She should be glad she found out about him in time.

RADIO REPAIRMAN: No. I guess if the fellow still wanted her he'd come around himself, but since he hasn't she should forget him.

CLEANING WOMAN: No. He's a fly by-night. But she shouldn't worry. There's always a lot of men for young girls

Carole Lombard's Last Film Comes to Loew's Thursday

Jack Benny in Co-Star Role

"To Be Or Not To Be," the Lubitsch picture which was Carole Lombard's last before her sudden death and in which Jack Benny co-stars, is to have its local premiere on Loew's State and Orpheum screens on Thursday.

After a slow start in Los Angeles where it was initially shown and during the blackout period, "To Be Or Not To Be" has been released elsewhere throughout the country and is doing big business everywhere.

Exhibitors report that after the first shock of seeing the lovely screen star, whose vital, alive quality was one of her greatest charms, audiences appear to enjoy the film comedy without any qualifications.

"To Be Or Not To Be," which is a shrewd blending of melodrama and comedy, is expected to be one of the season's big money-makers.

Set in Warsaw, its chief characters are a group of "ham" actors who are forced to exchange their stage roles for real life ones. When they become involved with the invaders they impersonate every important Nazi figure from Hitler down.

Important supporting roles are Lionel Atwill, Felix Bressart, Tom Dugan, Charles Halton and George Lynn.

The co-feature, "Brooklyn Orchid," the new streamlined Hal Roach comedy, features William Bendix, Joe Sawyer, Marjorie Woolworth and Grace Gradley.

'WATCH ON THE RHINE,' TOP PLAY OF '41, WELL WORTH WATCHING

Boston Gets New York Cast

By PEGGY DOYLE

Even with its 'best play of '41 tag and its 47 successful weeks on Broadway last month's capacity-seated Guild audience was hardly prepared for the first-page punch and the breath-stopping eloquence of Lillian Hellman's Watch on the Rhine."

Herman Shumlin, who unswervingly practices his belief that a fine play deserves a fine cast whether it be on Broadway or in Beloit, Mich., is presenting the Helman drama at the Colonial with the original New York cast. He is also responsible for the superb direction.

It will be here only two weeks which is hardly long enough for all of you to see it, for see it you must if you would not miss one of the greatest plays of our time. Without bringing a Nazi on stage or introducing a single ranting anti or pro-Nazi speech into the script, it is the world's most eloquent argument for Bomber buying.

In her third and finest drama, the author of "Children's Hour and "The Little Foxes' is concerned with those who give so much for so many, specifically Kurt Mueller.

Mueller, an anti-Nazi anti-Fascist German genius refugee, has brought his family to the United States to find sanctuary in his wife's ancestral home, just 20 miles outside of Washington D. C. It is a gracious, comfortable dwelling. Jo Mielziner has achieved, presided over by Sara Mueller's mother, a witty, charming dowager when she is not being an autocrat of the 9 o'clock breakfast table.

Their welcome is warm and reassuring until another house guest happens into the family reunion. He is the Count de Brancovis, a Roumanian nobleman, economically and domestically frustrated. His wife is the daughter of their hostess' old friend and he is a banker on at the German embassy.

From the start he is suspicious of Mueller, whose accent he can't place and whose children, innocently reveal the family's loving existence. He finally places him as a German idealist whose anti-Nazi efforts have caused him to be hunted by the Gestapo. He threatens to report him if he, Mueller, does not turn over to him the money he has collected for the anti-Nazi cause, money that is to be used to free other patriots held in concentration camps.

He doesn't get the money, nor is there sanctuary anywhere for the Muellers while what is going on in the world, our own topsy-turvy world, continues to go on. This compelling, compassionate third-act of Miss Hellman's is the most heart-shaking in our experience.

For Hollywood's Paul Lukas, the Hungarian stage and screen actor for whom it is only his second Broadway play, it is a great personal triumph. He never overplays, and his dignity and restraint contribute an unforgettable tenseness to the drama. His tired but tireless German is timely reminder that the lockstep is not universal in Nazi-land.

That excellent actress, Lucile Watson, was never more captious and delightfully feminine than as the matriarchal mistress of the Farrelly manse. She is a queen in her department of acting. Eda Heinemann's housekeeper-companion, whose long years of service have unbuttoned her tongue, is a nicely sharp contrast.

Mady Christians' Sara Mueller is a fine characterization, thoughtfully conceived and sensitively enacted. George Coulouris, as the Roumanian count of no account, gives a brilliant performance. Nor must the emanity be overlooked notably the precocious performance Pedo of squat, little Eric Roberts

'Rivals' Proves Gay Stage Fare

Starring Trio Wins Laurels

By JOYCE DANA

By Odi's triggers and flints, there's not a speck of the dust of centuries clinging to "The Rivals," which the Theatre Guild takes for a week's romp at the Opera House.

For in spite of the fact that young Richard Sheridan saw his first play produced at Covent Garden in 1775, it's as sprightly and gayly impudent as it must have been when it shocked the court of King George III. Not all the credit is Sheridan's. Bobby Clark, Margaret Anglin and Walter Hampden are the trio whose brilliant magic revitalizes the old eighteenth century types and whose presence lends poise and style to the improbabilities of a tenuous plot.

And it's Bobby Clark's Bob Acres with some 20th century funny business who dominates his every scene. Pet that erstwhile inanimate object replaced by a riding crop or a blunderbuss, Bob plays his cards with quill pens, or dispute his collapsible legs around the furniture is a riot in anybody's century. His frenzied sales talk to himself and his good friend Sir Lucius O'Trigger, working himself into the mood to duel for fair Lydia Languish is as funny as anything he ever did in his vaudeville heyday. And equally ludicrous is his rush of ire to the feet, when his valor is "oozing out of every pore," and he hides behind the ample cloaks of dueling Capt. Jack Absolute and Ensign Faulkland.

This is high comedy. So, too, is Margaret Anglin's portrait of that dear delightful Mrs. Malaprop, who hasn't any "allusion" on her pretty niece Lydia, and who majestically bids the gentlemen "Show the way and well precede you." Miss Anglin stepped into the part very recently when Mary Boland was drawn, and in her red curls and brilliant gowns she makes the "inestimable lady a joy to behold.

Mr. Hampden, clanking Cyrano and Shakespeare has a grand good time with Sir Anthony Absolute, that cursing old end and matchmaker who keeps the pot spinning along.

Helen Stanley is a charming Lydia and Jessie Ralph is the manner of the day, and Helen Ford in addition to being "the part" Lucy to perfection, sings the captivating songs in the added musical interludes. Mr. Clark has a song, too. It's "Buxom Joan," and it's fine, too, all right.

Philip Bourneuf as O'Trigger, Robert Wallsten as Faulkland and among the others contributing brisk performance. The staging is by Eva Le Gallienne.

LOMBARDI SHOWS HITTING POWER

ERNIE LOMBARDI

"The distance to left field at this park is the same as that at National League Park in Boston," said Casey Stengel as he watched the performance. "If Lombardi has one of his good years at the bat, we shall have some needed batting power.

"Ernie has worked with enthusiasm since he arrived here and I think he will have a good year."

Chester Ross, outfielder who broke his leg last year, came to bat. He punched out a hit over shortstop.

"Ross' leg is still a bit sensitive," declared Stengel, "but this condition will improve with work. Ross is a natural hitter."

Stengel kept his eyes on big Max West as the latter pulled the ball over the right field fence and into right field.

"West has power and can hit," went on Stengel. "Every Spring I feel West is going to do what he is capable of on the diamond. Maybe this will be the year Max will justify the high hopes we have held out for him."

Bob Quinn came over to talk with Stengel. I asked Bob what he thought of West.

"I think if West knew the first base job was his that he would have fewer worries and that he would play better baseball. There are many ball players who do not do themselves justice when they think they have to beat out one or two other players for a particular berth. This is why I think West would do better if he knew the first base job was his."

Fernandez is Hitter

Froilan Fernandez, infielder from the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast League, looks good at the plate. He takes a full swing at the ball, and when he connects he usually hits to the far corners of the park. It will be a pretty difficult task keeping Fernandez out of the regular lineup.

If Fernandez, West, Ross and Lombardi get hitting at the same time, the Braves will possess more power than at any time in recent years.

"The public is home run minded," said Bob Quinn. "This is why fellows like Jimmy Foxx and Ted Williams have been so popular. One can never tell when they are likely to break up a game with a home run. The short left field fence at Fenway Park, of course, helps the long right handed hitters."

Lombardi is the only Braves catcher who is certain of his job. There is a battle on for the other places among Clyde Kluttz, who was with Sacramento last season, John Stats, who is up from Bridgeport, and Alvin Montgomery and Phil Masi who were with the Braves last season.

I talked with Sibby Sisti, 21-year-old infielder, following his batting drill.

"I registered for the draft this year, and may be in the Army before many months have passed," said the young ball player. "I think I shall be an improved player this season, and will give the Braves everything I have in the baseball line up to the time I am called for service."

Quinn later told me that he thinks Sisti has acquired the necessary polish to become a big league star.

"Sisti was brought up to the Braves before he had any minor league experience," said Quinn. "It was a case of where we needed ball players, and were obliged to call upon Sisti before he was ready. I think Sibby picked up baseball rapidly, and that he will look well this season. As a matter of practice, it is better to school youngsters like Sisti for two or three years in the minors where they can play regularly before moving them into major league competition."

Miller at Short

Eddie Miller, my idea of the best shortstop in the big leagues, will once more be guarding this important post for the Braves. Miller is in splendid physical condition. He has a home at Lake Worth, and has been playing golf and baseball all winter.

"I wish Florida had a six club Winter league," said Eddie. "I think it would draw well, while I would like to play in an occasional game. I doubt, though, whether Judge Landis would permit big league players to take part in Winter league contests.

"I have a younger brother, Bill, who plays for the Miami club in the Summer. I know that boys like Bill would be benefited if they had a Winter league in Florida."

John Cooney, of course, will play regularly for the Braves this season. Last year the veteran hit for .319. With less competition due to so many players being called to service, Cooney should do equally as well this season.

Tony Cuccinello, another veteran, will also be around to do any baseball chores that Casey Stengel may wish to have taken care of.

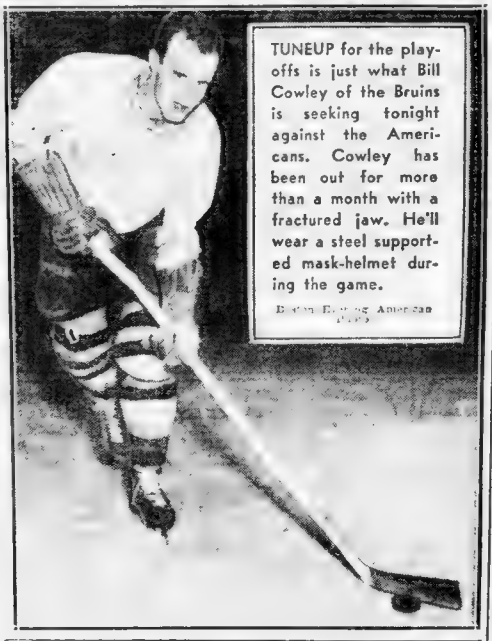
The Braves have an abundance of pitchers. The list includes George Diehl, Willard Donovan, Tom Earley, Dick Errickson, John Hutchins, Alvan Javery, Arthur Johnson, Frank Lamanna, Manuel Salvo, Warren Spahn, Jim Tobin, Louis Tost and Bob Williams. If five or six of these flingers can deliver in major league style, the Braves may go places.

Frank Demaree, Tommy Holmes and Paul Waner will also be around for necessary outfield duties.

With a few breaks, the Braves may surprise the fans and make a stout hearted bid for a first division berth. The club has plenty of possibilities.

BRUINS CLOSE SCHEDULE WITH A'S HERE TONIGHT

Another hockey season, one which took many a wierd turn, comes to a close for the Bruins tonight at the Boston Garden when they run out their string of 48 regularly scheduled games with the lowly Brooklyn Americans.



TUNEUP for the playoffs is just what Bill Cowley of the Bruins is seeking tonight against the Americans. Cowley has been out for more than a month with a fractured jaw. He'll wear a steel supported mask-helmet during the game.

Ordinarily this windup could mean a routine drab affair but there are a few factors involved which may make the fireworks tonight quite a game.

From the standpoint of the Amerks, they still have a chance of gaining that sixth place playoff slot. If they can beat the Bruins tonight for the fifth successive time this season, they will then sit tight until Thursday night when the Canadiens end their campaign against Toronto.

If the Amerks win and the Canadiens lose, the two teams will be tied for games won and lost which means that total goals will decide. Since the Puttonmen are now three goals up, they would figure to be the team.

THIRD PLACE CLINCHED

So it is not difficult to see that the Americans will be in there pitching a little way but how about the Bruins?

The Bruins have third place clinched and can go no higher, yet they are not going to take it easy tonight. There is a great deal of polishing to be done before Sunday's playoff game with Chicago and that means plenty of work tonight.

First Bill Cowley is returning to action after being idle since January 22 with a badly shattered jaw. Protected by a steel head dress which was designed for Milt Schmidt a few years ago, Cowboy Bill will resume his spot between Riflin' Roy Conacher and Co-Capt. Eddie Wiseman.

Jack McGill, who has been the late season rookie standpoint of the loop and who has scored six goals and picked up nine assists in 12 games, will take the center spot Flash Hollett occupied and work with Gordie Bruce and Dutch Hiller.

NEED TEAM POLISH

This will release Hollett for defense duty where he is best fitted. Flash will team with Des Smith, and Co-Captain Jack Crawford will again work with Jake Shewchuk.

That leaves a third line of the Jacksons and Art Cain. The 15th man will be either Lloyd Gronsdal or Clare Martin.

Thus there are two revamped lines and a defense team which needs to work together and they'll be hustling all the way to get working together.

Pics Open Play-Offs In Washington Tonight

With one game still to be played of the regular campaign, the Boston Olympics tonight open their bid for the Eastern League crown with a play-off tilt against the Washington Eagles to be played in the Capital.

Following tonight's contest, the O's return to the Hub and close their regular season Wednesday night at the Garden against the Atlantic City Sea Gulls. It will be the last game of the campaign for all the clubs in the circuit.

One other play-off game is scheduled for tonight, River Vale at Baltimore.

The Olympics will face the Eagles without the services of Danny Sullivan, Jesse Allen and Gerry Bauer. The latter was unable to get away, the first two from work and the latter from school.

George Blake and Al DePuy, the two newest Pics who made their debut over the weekend, will join the club in New Haven on the way to Washington.

Another new player, Don Veigel of Akron, will make his first showing in an Olympic uniform tonight.

Hughson Goes To Arm Doctor

SARASOTA, Fla., March 17—Tex Hughson, Red Sox pitcher, was on his way to Coral Gables today to see a Dr. Burkhardt about his ailing right arm.

The 6-3 Texan, a midsummer sensation with the Sox last August, has not been himself since he came down here this spring.

Last summer, after winning five games for the Red Sox Tex hurt his arm and was sent to a Dr. Odea in Scranton. He came back to the team in September, but was unable to work.

This spring he pitched three innings against the Giants in Miami but has been able to do nothing since. It is feared he is out for the season. —FINNEGAN.

EAGLES SHARPEN TALONS—The above stampede will be a daily occurrence at Alumni Field, where Boston College's husky grid squad will enjoy spring practice for the next five weeks. Head Coach Denny Myers has announced a spring campaign which will entail "long hours and hard work."

FOOTBALL TIME—Don Forte, Harvard's grid leader, and Head Coach Dick Harlow get together at the opening of spring football.

Myers Promises Eagles Nothing But Hard Work

With all colleges going in for "accelerated academic programs" Boston College's Head Coach Denny Myers has caught the swing of things and has announced that his Eagle football squad, now "enjoying" spring practice, "must work long, hard hours."

This is not the same Myers who last spring came to Boston College, took one look at a band of husky, grid-wise athletes, remembered that many of his new squad had just previously finished a hard season topped off with a Sugar Bowl conquest of Tennessee, and decided that what the boys needed most was short, sweet and snappy workouts.

It'll be interesting to see just how the new program works out.

Myers indicated yesterday, the first time he's talked with his squad since the Holy Cross game late last November, that there'd be no fooling this spring.

"Practice will start promptly at 3:30 each afternoon and won't end until close to 6 o'clock," he told a squad of 39 candidates, only 12 of whom were lettermen.

FIVE WEEK DRILL

"The country needs strong, healthy bodies and it's our duty to see that you men are in top physical shape," Denny told the boys in a locker-room meeting held before Harry Marr, end coach, supervised calisthenics drill on the out-door track at Alumni Field.

The session wound up with the athletes, who worked in gym shoes, doing 20 laps around Jack Ryder's favorite saucer.

Practice will continue for the next five weeks, during which time the size of the squad may be swelled by candidates who missed yesterday's opening session because of stepped up scholastic programs, injuries and ineligibility.

Three of last fall's lettermen, who in ordinary times would be with the squad, have already joined the service.

Al Ruhack and Billy Devene, end and halfback, respectively, who won freshman numerals last season, are in the Army.

Others will go before the start of next fall's campaign. Most of those who reported yesterday, however, are expected to play football next fall. Many of the men have joined military units but are expected to be permitted to graduate before being called to the colors.

Co-Capts. Mike Holovak, right halfback, and Fred Naumetz, center, headed the list of candidates who reported yesterday. Both appeared in fine condition.

Candidates:

ENDS—Charles Furbush, Wollaston; Angelo Notarianni, Lynn; Edward Lambert, Brighton; Charles Toole, Dorchester; Edward Frazar, Brighton; Edward Forrestall, Everett; James Ioanilo, Brighton; Donald Auberg, Norwalk, Ct.; Robert Kozlowski, Somerville.

TACKLES—Co-Capt. Jewett C. Long, Ky.; Paul Sullivan, Pittsfield; Peter Pappas, Natick; John Dalzell, Gardner; Edward McMeel, Dorchester; Edward Nixon, Brookline.

GUARDS—Gideon Carmele, Watertown, N. Y.; Pasquale Daronet, Malden; Frank Landry, Gardner; William Power, Roxbury; Frank Sposato, Providence, R. I.; Victor Palladino, Watertown; John Sheridan, Mt. Carmel, Penna.

CENTERS—Co-Capt. Fred Naumetz, Newburyport; Christopher Brady, Peabody; Robert Sullivan, Brookline; Manuel Zeus, Watertown; William Hamrock, Dorchester.

NAVY MEET MAY SHATTER TRACK MARKS

NEW YORK, March 17 (INS)—The fastest men in America will attempt the biggest blitzkrieg in track history at the New York Coliseum March 25 in an all-out, all-star track meet for the Naval Relief Society.

Leslie MacMitchell, Gilbert Dodds, Gregory Rice, John Borican, Al Diebolt, Johnny Campbell will run time into the ground in what many expect to be the greatest indoor track show ever held.

According to the script, new world records should be set in the half-mile, quarter-mile and one-mile or two-mile events. In the half, Borican, tremendous, long-striding, is a cinch.

Long John has promised a 1:50 half, despite the fact that Lloyd Hahn was the last record holder at 1:51.4 in 1928.

The world standard of 49.6 is almost certain to be shattered in the 440 yard run with the phenomenal Diebolt, Colgate's baby star; Johnny Campbell of Fordham and Roy Cochiane in the competition.

MacMitchell and Dodds, in the rubber match of their 1942 mile rivalry, may better the former's mile mark of 4:07.4 seconds.

The Coliseum track is said to be a full second faster than the Garden strip and, if that is so, there is no telling what will happen to old father time's best work.

Gene Rice has accepted an invitation and will probably make a show of his field in the two-mile run, provided MacMitchell or Dodds doesn't decide to take the ex-Notre Damer on, in his specialty.

Coast Crowd Ban Perils Conference

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17 (AP)—The Pacific Coast Conference may curtail or scrap its 1942 football schedule because of the Army ban on crowds of more than 5000 persons in the West defense area. Conference members will meet at Portland next week end to discuss the crowd limit.

Harvard's Grid Success Depends on 33 Frosh

Whatever plans Crimson mentor Dick Harlow makes for next fall's grid campaign, the 33 odd freshmen who reported yesterday afternoon in Briggs Cage for the first spring practice must supply most of the answers. Just seven lettermen reported, with one, Capt. Don Forte of Waban, the only holdover of the team that lined up for the start of the Yale game.

While letterman guard Dick Row of Cambridge was not expected to report because of a part-time job, three other letter winners failed to make an appearance. They were tailback Cleo O'Donnell, Jr., wingback Gordie Lyle and end Bull Barnes.

FROSH WON ONLY ONE GAME

It would not surprise if Lyle and Barnes fell victim either to the Marine Corps or to the disease of accelerated study which claimed Johnny Page, Don McNicol and Dave Goldthwaite earlier this month. O'Donnell, like fullback Wayne Johnson, tackle Russ Stannard and Row, may be called to service with six months' notice from the Marine Corps.

On the surface the freshmen would not seem to be very good insurance for a mother lode. Of six games last season they won only one, that from Worcester Academy. Since the Harlow magic has brought forth gold in the past from what seemed pure brass, this record can be discounted in large part.

This freshman class has already supplied an undefeated hockey team and one of the best boxing teams in history, so that it would be logical to think the 33 rugged lads who reported yesterday will develop fast by next fall.

The leading frosh included Capt. Jack and Bill Fisher, two sons of former Harvard Coach Robert Fisher of Weston; blond Dick Mechem of Washington, accaptain rated the best since Austie Harding. Mechem started at right half in the Yale game; husky 6 ft 4 in. end Pete Garland of Bar zards Bay, record-breaking shotputter; Fullback Paul Perkins of Brookline; Don Richards, guard on the basketball team, and starter at C. Buck against Yale, and Charlie Gladstone, end, who wrestled for Harvard.

11 FROSH GUARDS REPORT

Harlow signified the wide open situation prevailing at most positions when he said:

"We are making every effort to take a look at everybody as soon as we can—particularly the guard squad."

Of 16 guards who reported, 11 were freshmen.

Lloyd Anderson, the husky Old Orchard boy who understudied Page and Burgy Ayres at the pivot post last fall, was tried out at blocking back. If he makes good, it will be nothing new for him to play in the backfield. He was selected All State Maine fullback in high school before going to Andover.

Belmont Woman Golfer Enters N-S Match Play

PINEHURST, N. C., March 17 (AP)—Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, the former national champion who is in quest of her sixth North and South woman's golf title, drew Madeline White of Wheatley Hills, N. Y., as her first round opponent today.

The Chapel Hill, N. C., housewife won the qualifying medal yesterday with a 74, while Miss White soared to a 90. Mrs. Page had a bad start. Her chip shots went too far and her putts missed. But after the third hole, she found her accuracy and breezed ahead of the field.

Dorothy Kirby, the Atlanta Miss who has been defeated by Mrs. Page in the finals for the last three years, shot a 77 and tied with Mrs. Thomas E. Nolan of Newcastle, Pa., for second honors.

Other championship pairings with qualifying scores:

Mary Clay O'Connor, Durham, N. C., 89, vs. Sally Sessions, Muskegon, Mich., 80; Mary Jane Garman, Sarasota, Fla. 50, vs. Helen Waring, Pinehurst, 83; Dorothy Kirby, Atlanta, 77, vs. Mrs. J. J. LOMBARDI SHOWS HITTING POWER

ERNIE LOMBARDI

"The distance to left field at this park is the same as that at National League Park in Boston," said Casey Stengel as he watched the performance. "If Lombardi has one of his good years at the bat, we shall have some needed batting power.

"Ernie has worked with enthusiasm since he arrived here and I think he will have a good year."

Charley Ross, outfielder who broke his leg last year, came in for his part of the shortstop.

"Ross' leg is still a bit sensitive," declared Stengel, "but this condition will improve with work. Ross is a natural hitter."

Stengel kept his eyes on big Max West as the latter patrolled the distant reaches of right field.

"West has power and can hit," went on Stengel. "Every Spring I feel West is going to do what he is capable of on the diamond. Maybe this will be the year Max will justify the high hopes we have held out for him."

Bob Quinn came over to talk with Stengel. I asked Bob what he thought of West.

"I think if West knew the first base job was his that he would have fewer worries and that he would play better baseball. There are many ball players who do not do themselves justice when they think they have to beat out one or two other players for a particular berth. This is why I think West would do better if he knew the first base job was his."

Fernandez is Hitter

Froilan Fernandez, infielder from the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast League, looks good at the plate. He takes a full swing at the ball, and when he connects he usually hits to the far corners of the park. It will be a pretty difficult task keeping Fernandez out of the regular lineup.

If Fernandez, West, Ross and Lombardi get hitting at the same time, the Braves will possess more power than at any time in recent years.

"The public is home run minded," said Bob Quinn. "This is why fellows like Jimmy Foxx and Ted Williams have been so popular. One can never tell when they are likely to break up a game with a home run. The short left field fence at Fenway Park, of course, helps the long right handed hitters."

Lombardi is the only Braves catcher who is certain of his job. There is a battle on for the other places among Clyde Kluttz, who was with Sacramento last season, John Stats, who is up from Bridgeport, and Alvin Montgomery and Phil Masi who were with the Braves last season.

I talked with Sibby Sisti, 21-year-old infielder, following his batting drill.

"I registered for the draft this year, and may be in the Army before many months have passed," said the young ball player. "I think I shall be an improved player this season, and will give the Braves everything I have in the baseball line up to the time I am called for service."

Quinn later told me that he thinks Sisti has acquired the necessary polish to become a big league star.

"Sisti was brought up to the Braves before he had any minor league experience," said Quinn. "It was a case of where we needed ball players, and were obliged to call upon Sisti before he was ready. I think Sibby picked up baseball rapidly, and that he will look well this season. As a matter of practice, it is better to school youngsters like Sisti for two or three years in the minors where they can play regularly before moving them into major league competition."

Miller at Short

Eddie Miller, my idea of the best shortstop in the big leagues, will once more be guarding this important post for the Braves. Miller is in splendid physical condition. He has a home at Lake Worth, and has been playing golf and baseball all winter.

"I wish Florida had a six club Winter league," said Eddie. "I think it would draw well, while I would like to play in an occasional game. I doubt, though, whether Judge Landis would permit big league players to take part in Winter league contests.

"I have a younger brother, Bill, who plays for the Miami club in the Summer. I know that boys like Bill would be benefited if they had a Winter league in Florida."

John Cooney, of course, will play regularly for the Braves this season. Last year the veteran hit for .319. With less competition due to so many players being called to service, Cooney should do equally as well this season.

Tony Cuccinello, another veteran, will also be around to do any baseball chores that Casey Stengel may wish to have taken care of.

The Braves have an abundance of pitchers. The list includes George Diehl, Willard Donovan, Tom Earley, Dick Errickson, John Hutchings, Alvan Javery, Arthur Johnson, Frank Lamanna, Manuel Salvo, Warren Spahn, Jim Tobin, Louis Tost and Bob Williams. If five or six of these flingers can deliver in major league style, the Braves may go places.

Frank Demaree, Tommy Holmes and Paul Waner will also be around for necessary outfield duties.

With a few breaks, the Braves may surprise the fans and make a stout hearted bid for a first division berth. The club has plenty of possibilities.

BRUINS CLOSE SCHEDULE WITH A'S HERE TONIGHT

Another hockey season, one which took many a wierd turn, comes to a close for the Bruins tonight at the Boston Garden when they run out their string of 48 regularly scheduled games with the lowly Brooklyn Americans.

Ordinarily this windup could mean a routine drab affair but there are a few factors involved which may make this fracas tonight quite a game.

From the standpoint of the Amerks, they still have a chance of gaining that sixth place playoff slot. If they can beat the Bruins tonight for the fifth successive time this season, they will then sit tight until Thursday night when the Canadiens end their campaign against Toronto.

If the Amerks win and the Canadiens lose, the two teams will be tied for games won and lost which means that total goals will decide. Since the Duttonmen are now three goals up, they would figure to be the team.

THIRD PLACE CLINCHED

So it is not difficult to see that the Americans will be in there pitching all the way- but how about the Bruins?

The Bruins have third place clinched and can go no higher, yet they are not going to take it easy tonight. There is a great deal of polishing to be done before Sunday's playoff game with Chicago and that means plenty of work tonight.

First Bill Cowley is returning to action after being idle since January 22 with a badly shattered jaw. Protected by a steel head dress which was designed for Milt Schmidt a few years ago, Cowboy Bill will resume his spot between Rollin' Roy Conacher and Co-Capt. Eddie Wiseman.

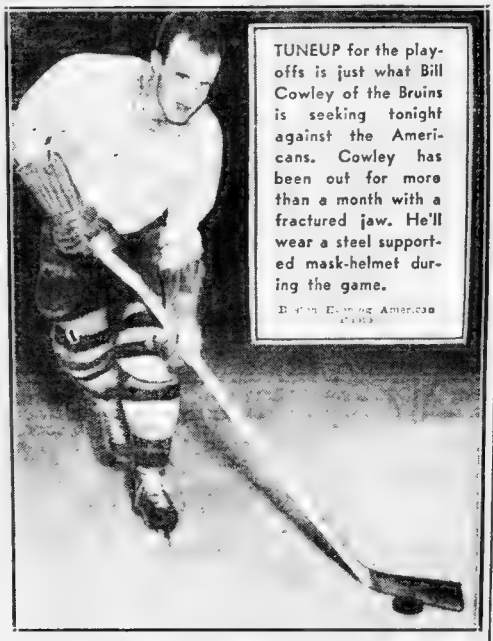
Jack McGill, who has been the late season rookie standpoint of the loop and who has scored six goals and picked up nine assists in 12 games, will take the center spot Flash Hollett occupied and work with Gordie Bruce and Dutch Hiller.

NEED TEAM POLISH

This will release Hollett for defense duty where he is best fitted. Flash will team with Des Smith, and Co-Captain Jack Crawford will again work with Jake Shewchuk.

That leaves a third line of the Jacksons and Art Cain. The 15th man will be either Lloyd Gronsdal or Clare Martin.

Thus there are two revamped lines and a defense team which needs to work together and they'll be hustling all the way to get working together.



TUNEUP for the playoffs is just what Bill Cowley of the Bruins is seeking tonight against the Americans. Cowley has been out for more than a month with a fractured jaw. He'll wear a steel supported mask-helmet during the game.

Another new player, Don Veitel of Akron, will make his first showing on an Olympic uniform tonight.

Hughson Goes To Arm Doctor

SARASOTA, Fla., March 17— Tex Hughson, Red Sox pitcher, was on his way to Coral Gables today to see a Dr. Burkhardt about his ailing right arm.

The 6-3 Texan, a midsummer sensation with the Sox last August, has not been himself since he came down here this spring.

Last summer, after winning five games for the Red Sox Tex hurt his arm and was sent to a Dr. Odea in Scranton. He came back to the team in September, but was unable to work.

This spring he pitched three innings against the Giants in Miami but has been able to do nothing since. It is feared he is out for the season. —FINNEGAN.

EAGLES SHARPEN TALONS—The above stampede will be a daily occurrence at Alumni Field, where Boston College's husky grid squad will enjoy spring practice for the next five weeks. Head Coach Denny Myers has announced a spring campaign which will entail "long hours and hard work."

Myers Promises Eagles Nothing But Hard Work

With all colleges going in for "accelerated academic programs" Boston College's Head Coach Denny Myers has caught the swing of things and has announced that his Eagle football squad, now "enjoying" spring practice, "must work long, hard hours."

This is not the same Myers who last spring came to Boston College, took one look at a band of husky, grid-wise athletes, remembered that many of his new squad had just previously finished a hard season topped off with a Sugar Bowl conquest of Tennessee, and decided that what the boys needed most was short, sweet and snappy workouts.

It'll be interesting to see just how the new program works out.

Myers indicated yesterday, the first time he's talked with his squad since the Holy Cross game late last November, that there'd be no fooling this spring.

"Practice will start promptly at 3:30 each afternoon and won't end until close to 6 o'clock," he told a squad of 39 candidates, only 12 of whom were lettermen.

FIVE WEEK DRILL

"The country needs strong, healthy bodies and it's our duty to see that you men are in top physical shape," Denny told the boys in a locker-room meeting held before Harry Marr, end coach, supervised calisthenics drill on the out-door track at Alumni Field.

The session wound up with the athletes, who worked in gym shoes doing 20 laps around Jack Ryder's favorite saucer.

Practice will continue for the next five weeks, during which time the size of the squad may be swelled by candidates who missed yesterday's opening session because of stepped up scholastic programs, injuries and ineligibility.

Three of last fall's lettermen, who in ordinary times would be with the squad, have already joined the service.

Al Ruback and Billy Devene, end and halfback, respectively, who won freshman numerals last season, are in the Army.

Others will go before the start of next fall's campaign. Most of those who reported yesterday, however, are expected to play football next fall. Many of the men have joined military units but are expected to be permitted to graduate before being called to the colors.

Co-Caps. Mike Holovak, right halfback, and Fred Naumetz center, headed the list of candidates who reported yesterday. Both appeared in fine condition.

NAVY MEET MAY SHATTER TRACK MARKS

NEW YORK, March 17 (INS)—The fastest men in America will attempt the biggest blitzkrieg in track history at the New York Coliseum March 25 in an all-out, all-star track meet for the Naval Relief Society.

Leslie MacMitchell, Gilbert Dodds, Gregory Rice, John Borican, Al Dieboldt, Johnny Campbell, will run time into the ground in what many expect to be the greatest indoor track show ever held.

According to the script new world records should be set in the half mile, quarter mile and one mile or two-mile events. In the latter, Borican, tremendous, long-striding, is a cinch.

Long John has promised a 1:50 half, despite the fact that Lloyd Hahn was the last record holder at 1:51.4 in 1928.

The world standard of 49.6 is almost certain to be shattered in the 440 yard run with the phenomenal Dieboldt, Colgate's baby star; Johnny Campbell of Fordham and Roy Cochrane in the competition.

MacMitchell and Dodds, in the rubber match of their 1942 mile rivalry, may better the former's mile mark of 4:07.4 seconds.

The Coliseum track is said to be a fast, second fastest, to the Garden, if up and it this is so, there is no telling what will happen to old father Time next week.

Greg Rice has accepted an invitation and will probably make a show of his field in the two-mile run provided MacMitchell or Dodds do not decide to take the ex-Notre Dame ace on in his specialty.

Coast Crowd Ban Perils Conference

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17 (AP)—The Pacific Coast Conference may curtail or scrap its 1942 football schedule because of the Army's ban on crowds of more than 5000 persons in the West defense area. Conference members will meet at Portland next week to discuss the crowd limit.

Harvard's Grid Success Depends on 33 Frosh

Whatever plans Crimson mentor Dick Harlow makes for next fall's grid campaign, the 33 odd freshmen who reported yesterday afternoon in Briggs Cage for the first spring practice must supply most of the answers. Just seven lettermen reported, with one, Capt. Don Forte of Waban, the only holdover of the team that lined up for the start of the Yale game.

While letterman guard Dick Row of Cambridge was not expected to report because of a part-time job three other letter winners failed to make an appearance. They were tailback Cleo O'Donnell, Jr., wingback Gordie Lyle and end Bill Barnes.

This freshman class has already supplied an undefeated hockey team and one of the best hoop teams in history, so that it would be logical to think the 33 rugged lads who reported yesterday will develop fast by next fall.

11 FROSH GUARDS REPORT

Harlow signified the wide open situation prevailing at most positions when he said:

"We are making every effort to take a look at everybody as soon as we can—particularly the guard squad."

Of 16 guards who reported, 11 were freshmen.

OUTRIGHT GIFT CHICAGO TURF WAR AID PLAN

CHICAGO, March 17 (INS)—Chicago race track operators said today they had postponed fixing the amount of their contributions to war funds until after they have listened to the ideas of racing representatives from other sections of the country when they meet at the National Turf Congress here Thursday and Friday.

The local representatives are agreed that an outright contribution from the track's treasuries should be made to the war funds rather than funds obtained by special events, extra races and benefit programs.

Charles Krutckoff, president of Hawthorne, and Charles Bidwell, chairman of the board of directors of the track, suggested the apportioning of the contribution among Chicago tracks at a meeting held in the offices of the Illinois Racing Board.

According to the plan the daily average mutuel betting handles for 1941 would be used as a guide to each track's ability to contribute. Krutckoff said the Illinois pool would be close to $200,000.

It was agreed that each track would be free to contribute to war funds in a recognized war charity in its own city.

Market Wise, Mioland Duel At Tropical

MIAMI, Fla., March 17 (AP)—Mioland and Market Wise, two turf greats who got nothing but exercise out of the $50,000 Widener here March 7, will run again Saturday in an effort to prove the poor showing each made was purely accidental.

The contention of many railbirds was that both Charles S. Howard's Mioland, winner of $224,150 in three seasons, and Louis Tufano's Market Wise were simply lost in the scramble of an oversized Widener field. There certainly was little doubt that both were lost at the finish line, Mioland running eighth and Market Wise ninth.

Mioland will carry the top impost of 125 pounds, three less than he had in the Widener, in the $7500 Coral Gables Handicap at Tropical Park. Market Wise also was dropped three pounds, to 122.

Another star, Woodvale Farm's Our Boots, drew the next impost of 120, six pounds more than Mrs Harry Payne Whitney's surprise Widener winner, The Rhymer.

Our Boots came out of the Widener with more to show for his efforts than any other name horse in the field. He finished fourth behind The Rhymer, Best Seller and Olympus.

Two other Widener disappointments—Arnold Hanger's Dit and Howard's Porter's Cap—will carry 111 and the Circle M. Ranch's ace, Star Off, 1e next in line with 112.

If the name horses found the going rough in the Widener with 17 in the field, it's by no means to [illegible] much relief in the Gables. Thirty have been entered in the race, biggest stake of Tropical's spring meeting so far, and there appears little likelihood [illegible] than a dozen or so will be scratched.

FLORIDA GETS HUGE NEW SUM FROM RACES

By the Associated Press

Virtually the only important race of the week is the Coral Gables handicap at Tropical Park on Saturday which gives some of the name horses a chance for revenge against The Rhymer, surprise winner of the $50,000 Widener.

Such animals as Mioland, Market Wise and Our Boots have been named for the race, in addition to The Rhymer.

Although attendance and betting at the Florida tracks this season have not kept pace with the record totals of a year ago, race officials figure that the Flamingo State treasury is approximately $1,500,000 richer at this point than it was on a comparable day in 1941.

They estimated that Florida, on its returns from horse racing, jai alai and dog racing, increased its seasonal revenue to more than $3,500,000 as against $1,900,000 last year.

This is the first season of racing since the Florida Legislature added an additional 5 per cent take to its share of the track betting revenue, plus the breakage.

Track addicts hold that the increased take and the failure of the favorites to come through are the main reasons for the drop in betting. The wagering for the first days of the current Tropical season was $2,151,839 as against $2,846,127 in the same period of 1941.

In order to accommodate all the stables seeking room in the East, Empire City will open its barns shortly instead of waiting until just before the meeting in June. Work on the racing strip will be started soon so it will be ready for workouts.

New York will be fully represented at the National Racing Conference at Chicago this wee-end. Leaving today are William Woodward, chairman of the Jockey Club; George H. Bull, president of Saratoga and Empire City; Theodore J. Knapp, president of Aqueduct; George M. Francis, director of Belmont, and Fred Parks, secretary of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Ass'n.

Although Eddie Arcaro's injuries in Friday's four-horse spill at Tropical Park were far less serious than at first supposed, it is extremely unlikely that he will be able to ride again before early April. He suffered a badly pulled muscle in his right forearm.

Wendell Eads is another top-flight jockey who will be out of the saddle for several weeks. He will undergo a tonsilectomy this week-end and will be idle until he reports to Warren Wright for the mid-April meeting at Keeneland.

Billie Thompson, a jockey who escaped injury in the spill that grounded Arcaro, won with Master Key in the Miami Springs Purse yesterday, doing the mile and a sixteenth in 1.41 2-5, and returning $21.80 for two.

Thompson sent Master Key, owned by R. A. Dario, through a small opening on the inside as the 10-horse field was bunched at the start of the backstretch run and won going away. Charles S. Howard's Present Arms was second, and B. F. Lister's Silver Tower third.

Gulls Retain Victory; President Overriden

NEW YORK, March 17 (AP)—The Atlantic City Sea Gulls won their Saturday night's Eastern Amateur Hockey League game with the New York Rovers for the second time today. The score, 7-6, just as it was when the two teams ended overtime play at Atlantic City. Tom Lockhart, president of the circuit, originally ruled the Rovers won 3 to 5 in regulation time, saying that the Sea Gull's tying goal was scored after the final buzzer. Today the club owners over-ruled Lockhart since Referee Johnny Wilken said Atlantic City's goal was legal.

2 Good Tires Give Grid Team Grip on Title

ONTARIO, Cal., March 17 (AP)—The Citrus Belt League voted to play football as long as members' bus tires hold out. So Sports Editor Jake Bond of the Ontario daily rubber-necked the situation and predicted Chaffey High of Ontario should win the title by at least two blowouts.

Here's his nifty basis for that selection:

"Here at Chaffey, Coach Muggs Mitchell is well supplied with two outstanding bus tires, a pair of mediocre rear ones and a spare of unknown stamina. The right rear may or may not last the season.

"At Pomona, Coach Archie Nesbit isn't so fortunate. The Red Devils are badly in need of replacements on three wheels.

"Riverside's material is the poorest in the league, with one bad blowout, the tread worn off two other tires, and a fourth that looks like it would go out any moment."

Woodall's Magic Aids Norm Brown

By HERB FINNEGAN

SARASOTA, Fla., March 17—Larry Woodall has been with the Sox only a couple of weeks, but the former Detroit catcher would seem to have earned his 1942 salary already.

Norman Brown, the handsome 23-year-old right hander who gave the Yankees only one hit in five innings the other afternoon, credits Larry with the sharp improvement in his pitching.

"I always gripped my fast ball tight," said young Brown in reviewing his progress here. "It used to 'take off' and was hard to control.

"Larry watched me for a while and said 'Ease up on the grip. Hold it loosely. You'll get better results.'

ONLY 23 LAST FEB. 1

"I tried the loose grip against the Yanks," Brown went on "and it worked like a charm. Instead of the ball hopping hither and yon, I could keep it down at the batter's knees. It would sink at times, too.

"I've learned something I never learned in my five years kicking around the bushes."

Brown was only 23 last Feb. 1, yet the Sox have had him since his high school days. He started in the Sox chain with Moultrie, Ga., way back in '37. The intervening years have been spent at Canton, Rocky Mount and Greensboro, with a few weeks at Scranton last spring.

Back in '38 he won 20 and lost 13 for Canton, a Class C farm in the Middle Atlantic League. In '40 he won 11 and lost 5 at Rocky Mount under Heinie Manush and was rewarded with a trip to Sarasota.

There was a plethora of pitchers in camp, however, and he was sent to Scranton before he had his bag unpacked. For some strange reason Scranton shipped him back to Heinie Manush at Greensboro, to which town the Sox had shifted their Rocky Mount franchise.

Brown had a 13-8 record at Greensboro, a great year considering he lost his first five games by one run.

Those Red Sox farm hands evidently just don't hit, because Dickman, Judd and Butland lost a host of one-run games at Louisville.

"TOO MANY COOKS"

Anyway, here he is on his second trip to Sarasota, and this time he means to stay.

He's a serious youngster standing 6-2 with a blazing fast ball. He also has shown a sharp curve. Now the Sox are working on him with a change of pace, and he is making distinct progress with it.

"Trouble with beating around the bushes," said Brown when he first arrived here, "is that too many fellows tell you how to pitch.

"One manager tells you to do this, another that. Somebody else will say 'Don't pay any attention to him; do it this way.' You just don't know whom to listen to.

"If I only could find somebody who would tell me the correct thing to do and let me work from there on, I'd be all right."

Well, he seems to have found that person in Woodall. The way he mowed those Yankees down was a caution.

Most kids would have come up with a sore arm if they knew they were to pitch against Gordon, Henrich, et al. But not young Brownie. He was eager for the challenge.

LARRY WOODALL

He strode out to the mound as calmly as if he were pitching for the high school team in his native Bennetsville, N. C.

The only men to reach were Henrich on a walk in the first, Gordon on a basehit through Cronin in the second. The rest went down in order though Selkirk and Catcher Aaron Robinson tagged balls well in that second frame which Finney camped under after a long run.

Yet with Gordon on he fanned Priddy for the third out.

GIVE CREDIT TO WOODALL

In the fourth he fanned Henrich on a fast ball which had so much on it everybody in the press box thought it was a curve. Henrich missed it by six inches and looked very much surprised. Then he fanned hucky Mike Chartak to boot.

Watch Brown in his next start, which will come on the week-end. We'll wager he'll come through with another nice performance because any Class B kid who gives the world champions only one hit in five innings his first time out should be able to take care of himself in any company.

If he does continue to pitch as he has done to date, give gray-haired Larry Woodall a bit of the credit. He put the kid on his feet after a dozen former tutors had failed.

HARVARD BOY WINS 3 BOUTS TO ENTER N.E.'S

Johnny Bullitt of Portland, Me., Harvard student and boxing pupil of Coach Henry Lamar, defeated three opponents in the final eliminations of the New England A. A. U. trials of the Irish-American A. A. at the Arena.

Battling in the 135-pound class, Bullitt outpointed Sylvester O'Donnell of the U. S. Navy and Stanley Lock of Rockland, both by decision in the trial rounds.

STOPS PERKINS

George Perkins of Saugus was Bullitt's foe in the class final, and the Harvard scrapper proved too skillful and packed too much punch and stopped the North Shore boy in the second round.

Shooting left jabs to the face and waiting his chance for an opening, Bullitt dropped Perkins with a jolting left hook in the first round for the count of nine.

SLUGFEST

In a toe-to-toe scrap, Stanley Kinos of Chelsea outlasted John Gallo of Boston and scored a one-round kayo in the 147-pound class. With a few seconds of the round remaining, Kinos spilled Gallo with a right hook and the referee stopped the fuss.

A crowd of 2000 saw the last trials with the championship classes scheduled for next Monday night.

118-Pound Class—Roy Andrews, Lowell, defeated George Baker, Lynn, 3.

126-Pound Class—Steve Kronis, Boston, stopped Johnny Stoddard, Boston, 1.

135-Pound Class—Johnny Bullitt, Portland, Me., stopped George Perkins, Saugus, 2.

147-Pound Class—Sammy Kinos, Chelsea, stopped John Gallo, Boston, 1.

Boudreau Plans to Have Indians Show the Old 'College Spirit'

Lou Boudreau plans to instill the old college spirit into his Cleveland Indians. In the clubhouse at Clearwater a blackboard faces the players as they walk out, and thereon is written: "Have a Passion to score and a Desire to Win." Like the late Bill Roper's, "A team that won't be beaten can't be beaten" . . . Boudreau captained the varsity basketball team in his junior year at Illinois, but never did get around to captaining the baseball team, being declared ineligible just before his junior baseball year . . . He was on Cleveland's payroll, it was charged.

"We'll have meetings before every series," Boudreau told the writers, huddled together in the clubhouse while the rain fell outside. "We'll go over everybody's mistakes in previous games, and we'll try to keep from repeating those mistakes."

Boudreau believes his keystone partner and pal, Ray Mack, will stage a comeback at the plate this year . . . Mack fell off to .228 after bashing a highly respectable .283 and being chosen all-star A. L. second baseman in 1940, his first full year in the league . . . Mack is a former crack football player at Western Reserve and looks the part . . . He stands six feet one-half inch and weighs an even 200 . . . But he can step around second base like lightning, and pivots on the 6-4-3 double play better than anybody else in the league.

"No prima donnas on the club this year," opined trainer Lefty Max Weisman, formerly of Chelsea. "Not one complaint about the food yet. Used to make me sick hearing some of these big bohunks who never had anything but beans before they came up yelping about the way food is cooked in a hotel . . .

"I remember one guy who orders 'Salisbury Steak,' " Max went on disgustedly. "He gets it, the good old hamburg. Why the big dope didn't even know what Sallsbury steak was, and there he was, and there he was yelping because he didn't have a nice juicy tenderloin."

Slick-fielding shortstop Jack Conway, who played with Tex Hughson at University of Texas, has been released by the Indians . . . Jim Hegan of Lynn was in the .240's when he played for Wilkes-Barre last year but Boudreau claims that is a pitchers' league.

"The lights are bad there," says Lou. "Hegan has all the qualifications of a hitter. He's looked great thus far." Joe Cronin also thinks highly of Hegan as a hitter.

EVERYTHING'S BIG AROUND SIMON'S CAMP

SUMMIT, N. J., March 17 (AP)—Beginning with James Joy Johnston's voice—the big wind under the derby hat—everything around Ample Abe Simon's training camp up here in the north Jersey hills is big.

Naturally, James Joy's voice is the biggest of all. That situation is 2 to 5 in any book any time the reformed boy bandit is in the neighborhood. The sound of the fury even out-sizes Ample Abe himself, and that's no soft touch when you stack up against a dainty 250-pounder.

HANDS LIKE TWIN BEDS

Abe's paws are so huge he has to wear training gloves weighing a mere 27 ounces each instead of the conventional 16. Put headboards and woolen blankets on them and they'd look like twin beds. Ordinarily, fighters drink water from a quart bottle between rounds. Abe takes his swigs from a magnum-sized jar. Johnston insists this is not because the other's so small he's afraid his gladiator would accidentally swallow bottle and all.

But somehow when you talk of the stylish size of things in these parts, you always come back to James Joy's tremendous jawing. And, brothir, he's really under a full head of steam as time draws near for Abie's return rassle with Joe Louis for the Army Emergency Relief Fund in Madison Square Garden a week from Friday.

LIKE TWO OTHER GUYS

Of course, you always try to duck when James Joy is in this condition. It's not contagious, mind you, but the wind is something fierce. However, after watching Abe go through several fairly snappy rounds using a left hand that resembles a cross between a California Redwood and the front end of a truck, and comparing him with the slow, lumbering giant who went 13 rounds with the Bomber a year ago, you're willing to give James Joy half an ear anyway.

"Just look at that left," he will holler, the derby bouncing up and down with excitement. You can't very well overlook Abe's port-side poke. When he sticks it out, it's the only thing visible for miles.

"Why," Jimmy adds, "he's great. He's so much faster and steadier than he was a year ago he looks like two other guys."

Three Lowell Boys to Box On Arena Card

Lowell, one of the leading cities in New England in the production of worthy pugilists, will have three of its latest prospects on display Friday night at the Boston Arena when the Goodwin A. C. presents a boxing show featuring Al "Red" Priest, Cambridge, vs. Bill Tordiglione, North End, in the 10-round top event.

The Lowell larrupers who have been placed in the supporting cast by Matchmaker Rip Valenti are Dave "Golden Boy" Andrews, who is rated as one of the best young professionals in the country, Jimmy Taylor, a kid with a kayo punch, and the Blond Tiger, who has been thumping all rivals.

Andrews gets his first stiff test as a professional when he clashes with capable Dom DeCiantis, Providence, who was a very good performer in amateur days and has been campaigning with marked success among the professionals.

Jimmy Taylor takes on Danny Fitzgerald, Roxbury, and the Blond Tiger runs into Eddie DeAngelis, Revere.

Other preliminaries will be Mel Smallwood, Boston, vs. Eddie Rossi, Everett, and George Vento, Cambridge, vs. Florian Desmaris, Manchester, N. H. All five supporting bouts have been listed for six rounds each.

Jenkins Visits South Boston

Among the noted Irishmen on hand to aid South Boston in the celebration of St. Patrick's Day is Lew Jenkins, former lightweight champion of he world, more generally known as the sweet swatter from Sweetwater, Tex.

Without a word of warning Jenkins arrived in Boston last Saturday and turned up yesterday at Kelley & Hayes gym for an hour's workout. Booked to fight Mike Kaplan, Dorchester, in the 10-round feature bout of a Boston Boxing Ass'n show a week from Friday night, March 27, at Mechanics Building, Jenkins wasn't expected in the Hub until next Monday.

TAKES DAY OFF

Jenkins revealed that he had come quietly into Boston, took in a stage show Saturday and toured the city Sunday on foot.

"Always wanted a glimpse of Boston," said Jenkins. "It's quite a town."

Determined to make good in his comeback (he's seeking either the lightweight or welterweight crown) Jenkins is dead serious about conditioning work.

"Been in the gym every day now for a month. You should see me belting those sparring guys around in New York. I've got the old punch and any time I'm in shape I'll best anyone they put in against me.

"I'm going to skip the gym today, however. Want to go to South Boston and see the parade. I've heard it's the foremost Irish community in the country and that's the place for me on St. Patrick's Day. I want to meet Hambone Kelley and Jim Maloney. They were great fighting Irishmen and I'm anxious to shake hands with them."

Matchmaker Jack O'Brien of the B. B. A. has made arrangements for Jenkins to join the celebration and meet Maloney and Kelley. Jenkins, a snappy dresser, has brought along an emerald green ensemble for the occasion.
